

Free French Reported Invading Syria To Fight Vichy Force

Regiment Joins De Gaullists, Radio Declares

France Denies Information of Penetration Toward Iraq.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Radio Brazzaville, Free French station in equatorial Africa, broadcast a report yesterday that Free French troops have entered Syria to combat Axis forces aiding Iraq and that a regular French regiment was reported to have joined the de Gaullists.

In Vichy, competent French sources said they had heard of no such penetration.

The Free French broadcast was recorded in New York by CBS. In London the British news agency Reuters reported an entire French regiment in Syria was believed to have deserted to join the ranks of Free French forces advancing into Syria from Palestine.

Agency Quoted.
The agency quoted the Independent French Agency, AFI, in a dispatch from the Syrian frontier.

The agency's report: "There is reason to believe that a French regiment has gone over to the Free French forces which have entered Syria. The position still is uncertain."

"It appears that large French forces under General Henri Dentz, high commissioner for Syria and commander-in-chief, received orders to move into Lebanon with the aim of forestalling possible intervention from the direction of Palestine."

Hostility Met.
The regiment which joined General de Gaulle's troops formed the rearguard of these forces.

"Vichy authorities in Syria were said to be meeting hostility even among the troops that reached Lebanon."

Air and land successes against the German, Italian and Iraq forces were reported by the British Middle East command on the far-flung battlefronts of Iraq, Syria, North Africa and Ethiopia. In Iraq, where the action continues to be largely aerial, the British gave this picture of the situation:

British positions were consolidated around Fallujah, Euphrates river town just west of Baghdad, which air-borne British troops have seized. German air attacks were driven off by RAF fighters. Numbers of Iraqis were taken prisoners.

The RAF inflicted "considerable damage" on hangars and other buildings of the Iraqi Rashid airbase near Baghdad.

Two Junkers troop-carrying planes were hit in continuing RAF raids on Damascus and Palmyra airports in French-mandated Syria, which the Germans are continuing to use to ferry men and planes into Iraq.

Persian Gulf 'Quiet.'
(The British said the situation around the Persian gulf port of Basra was quiet, but an Iraq communiqué received in Beirut, Lebanon, declared the British had been driven back with heavy losses in a big battle and contended that many of the imperial troops which were landed there in April and early May had started back towards India.)

On the ground, a British garrison still hung on in besieged Tobruk while British mechanized patrols continued to harass the Axis troops around S. lum, Egypt.

Mediterranean Fleet Crushes Attempt Of Nazis To Invade Crete by Speedboat; Parachutists Fail To Hold Any Key Points

Nazis Reported Knox Hints Shipping Arms Naval Planes Across Turkey To Shield Ships

Force Ankara To Grant Permission With 'Rail Squeeze.'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
VICHY, France, May 21.—German military equipment already is crossing Turkey en route to Iraq by rail due to a Nazi squeeze play, diplomatic sources here reported tonight.

Reports from Istanbul said passenger traffic to Syria Iraq had been stopped but did not mention freight traffic.

Diplomatic circles here said the situation was this:

Small German military units in Iraq quickly established themselves along the railroad to Turkey and threatened to cut this line north of Baghdad unless the Turks agreed to let German material move through Turkey to Iraq.

Striving for Peace.

Since this route to the Persian gulf is a principal source of imports for Turkey now that the east Mediterranean is a war zone, the Turks had to comply.

(The British have been reported in control of Basra, Iraq's Persian gulf port, and presumably could use the same means to keep the Turks from bowing to German demands, but this dispatch made no mention of the possibility.)

This asserted railroad deal was cited in Vichy as proof that Turkey was doing everything possible to remain at peace.

A dispatch quoted the Istanbul paper, Yehi Sabah as asserting "our borders with Germany are lengthening daily. At all costs Turkey must prevent the Germans from settling down in Iraq and Syria. We must keep our routes to the outer world open, and not let ourselves be cut off from our British allies."

Bad-Humored Press.

Vichy sources said they recognized that the Turkish press at present appears "in a bad humor and in some ways menacing," but professed to attach no more than "moderate importance" to such a manifestation.

The French position was that the Ankara government, in the present circumstances, would run no risks of war, it being said that there was a "perceptible improvement" in Turkish-Syrian relations.

Competent sources said France was not worried by the evolution of the situation in the Near East, particularly where Turkish-French relations were concerned.

Secretary Demands Repeal of Neutrality 'Blunder.'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, May 21.—A hint that the United States is rushing preparations to employ numbers of relatively small plane carriers to safeguard merchant ships came today from Secretary Knox, who said guardedly that the Navy was "very busy" on the undertaking.

Without explaining whether such craft might be used except under actual war conditions, the secretary said that in connection with the controversy over delivery of munitions to Great Britain, it was "silly" to dwell exclusively on World War methods of protecting convoys from surface and under-sea attack alone.

Carrier Experiment.

A speedy former cargo ship already is being rebuilt experimentally as a carrier, and a score of new type "transports" and conventional plane carriers are under construction or planned, but Knox declined to divulge just what steps were being taken to cope with the problem presented by Germany's aerial blockade of Britain.

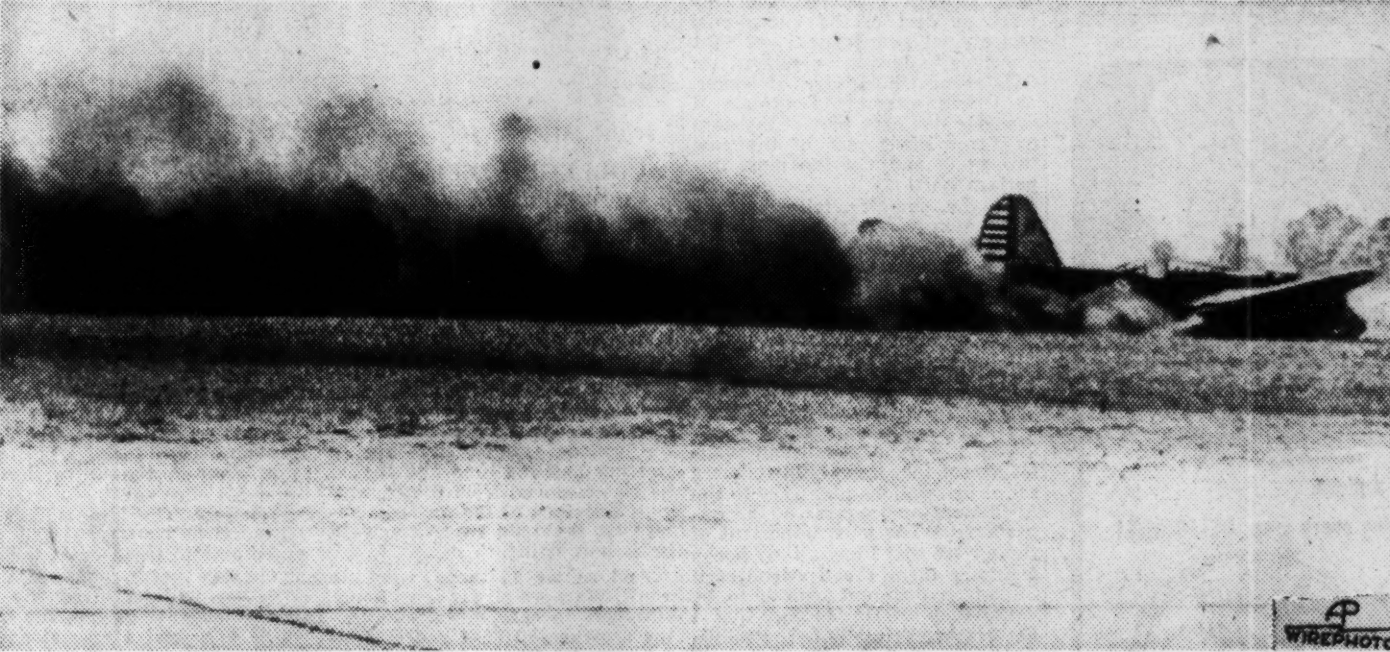

"It's one of the things we are not talking about," he told his press conference.

(Knox has called for repeal of the neutrality act and strict adherence to a freedom-of-the-seas policy under which United States merchant ships would discharge cargoes of war materials directly in British and other combat ports, the United Press said.)

Neutrality 'Blunder.'

(He said he always had regarded the neutrality law as a "terrible blunder," because it compelled this country to abandon freedom of the seas. "I am a firm believer, like the President, in a traditional policy of freedom of the seas," he told reporters. "I have been yelling for repeal of the neutrality act ever since it became a law. I always regarded it as a terrible blunder.")

Knox reported at the same time that the Navy's air force had been increased numerically by more than 50 per cent within a year, with a net reinforcement of 1,304 planes. On May 1 there were 3,476 naval aircraft of all types in service.

TWO-POINT LANDING—One wheel gone, an Army pilot yesterday brought his ship safely to earth—in a cloud of dust—after he had ordered three sergeants to bail out before chancing the risky landing to save the bomber. It was not seriously damaged. The wheel was lost in taking off. Lieutenant Robert L. Little, the pilot, took the ship to 2,000 feet and ordered his passengers overboard. Then he came in.

30,000 Practice at Benning; May Be Last Time, General Says

No Relief Seen One Arrested From Drouth After Rustlers Before Friday Are Surprised

Northwest Fulton Suffers From Drop in Water Pressure.

There will be no rain at least until Friday, the United States Weather Bureau office announced in Atlanta yesterday as the entire state sweltered in an extended heat wave which threatens damage to crops by drouth.

The acute drouth in Atlanta was held responsible for a drop in the water pressure in the northwest section of the county and prompted W. Zode Smith, city waterworks manager, to appeal to residents in this area not to water lawns before 9 o'clock at night when other demands for water are comparatively light.

Serious crop damage over the state as well as the southeast appeared imminent yesterday as the drouth sent temperatures soaring into the nineties and hastened the loss of the little moisture remaining.

The weatherman predicted a high of 95 degrees over the city of Atlanta and vicinity today with the general weather conditions remaining fair and generally warm. Temperature extremes yesterday were 70 and 94 degrees.

Crops already have been delayed from a few days to two weeks in most areas of the southeast by unseasonably cool weather early in the spring, and while no heavy losses have been listed so far, experts agreed that only a slight prolongation of drouth conditions would find beans, tomatoes, cabbage and other vegetables withering in the fields.

With no relief in sight, the Atlanta waterworks yesterday pointed out that lack of rain had caused thousands of residents to use water profusely in watering lawns, shrubbery and flowers, and as a consequence when peak demands are made on the small, inadequate mains serving the northwest section no water is available at all in some of the areas.

"There is no shortage of water," W. Zode Smith said, "but we have small mains serving this section and when scores of taps are open, some users can get no water at all."

Ice Cubes on Stove Solve Water Problem

"Bring some more iced tea," the lady said to the butler. "It'll be ready in a minute," was the reply. "I have the ice on the stove now."

And he did. It happened in the waterless section on Peachtree road at dinner last night. The butler had to heat the ice tray to extract the water. Yes, the ice was made before the water quit dribbling out of the faucet.

Two Attempt To Steal Cow From Talmadge

Pistols flared and one arrest was made yesterday after a state patrol investigator had surprised two cattle thieves as they attempted to get away with a Hereford cow from the farm of Governor Talmadge near Forsyth.

A Negro listed as Walter Smith was arrested near Forsyth after being traced by a grocery ticket he allegedly lost from his pocket as he fled from bloodhounds put on the trail by patrol authorities. Captain S. W. Roper, head of the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, said.

A white man was also believed to have been involved in the attempted theft and was thought to have been hit by a bullet from the pistol of Investigator Lewis Hightower when a gunbattle ensued after he surprised the pair on the Governor's farm off United States Highway 42, in Monroe county.

Major John E. Goodwin, commissioner of public safety, said nearly 20 head of cattle were stolen from the Governor last year.

Goodwin added that 12 cattle thieves have been captured in south Georgia in the last 10 days.

Canadians Announce Loss of Light Freighter

OTTAWA, May 21.—(Canadian Press)—Loss of the 1,746-ton steamer Portadoc, formerly of Fort William, Ont., by "enemy action" on April 4 was announced late today by the Canadian Department of Transport.

The department said nine members of the crew now are prisoners in French Guiana and that "apparently seven other crew members have been able to return to Scotland."

Actual War Conditions Simulated by Motor Divisions.

Thirty thousand fighting men began the Army's largest scale maneuvers under actual combat conditions at Fort Benning yesterday with the warning of their commanding general—that this may be their last chance to "practice"—setting each man grimly to the task ahead.

The practice, scheduled to continue through Friday, is precedent-setting in United States Army annals. It marks the first time the combined forces of armored division, motorized infantry and an air wing have attacked as a unit.

Around these actual combat maneuvers, climaxing the Army's up-to-the-minute training in modern warfare, officials attach the greatest significance. Eight high-ranking general are present as observers, including Major General Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff of the Army general headquarters in Washington.

Final Practice?

Major General George S. Patton, commander of the Second Armored Division, pitched the spirit of the maneuvers when, sending his men on preliminary tasks last Saturday, he urged them to give their all for—

"Who knows? It may be the last time you have to practice." Armored units were in the field yesterday as the Army prepared for the big attack which will begin this morning. Its officers were confident, itching for a fight.

"All the Second Division needs," officers said yesterday "to show its ability is an enemy."

Its force will be spent against an imaginary enemy on the vast Fort Benning reservation today.

Generals Observe.

Among the high-ranking observers on hand are Major General Jay Benedict, commanding general of the Fourth Army Corps; Major General Charles L. Scott, commanding general of the First Armored Corps; Brigadier General James I. Muir Sr., commanding general of the First Division at Fort Devan; Major General Lloyd R. Fredendall, commanding general of the Fourth (rolling) Division at Fort Benning; Major General George Patton Jr.; Brigadier General Fred C. Wallace, commanding general of the Field Artillery; Brigadier General Omar N. Bradley, commander of the Infantry school at Fort Benning.

Though the big push doesn't begin until this morning, the Second

New U.S. Owned Plants Given 650 Millions

Factories Will Fulfill Program of 500 Bombers Per Month.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(P)—The government took two strides today toward the goal of a vastly increased bombing plane production which President Roosevelt recently demanded.

1. Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, announced the allocation of $650,000,000 to build new government-owned airplane, aluminum and magnesium plants.

2. William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management, disclosed that four new contracts were being negotiated which, with existing contracts, would provide 500 long-range, four-motored heavy bombers a month.

This indicated that 500 a month apparently was the production rate sought by the President in his recent letter to Secretary Stimson, copies of which went to Jones and Knudsen. The letter said that the proposed production rate was outlined in a separate memorandum, which was not made public. Knudsen said that 500 monthly would "bring us near what the President wants."

In discussing the huge loan allocations at his press conference, Jones said the OPM had requested it to carry out the bomber program.

The allocation was broken down into $350,000,000 for airplane factories, $250,000,000 for aluminum plants and $50,000,000 for magnesium plants. It was believed that the airplane plants would be devoted principally to engine production.

The plants are to be financed and built by the government, but operated by private companies under contract. The OPM will determine their locations and other details.

1,000 Nazis Killed, Taken During Battle

Struggle for Key Island Still Indecisive; Hard Fight Seen.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Thousands of German sky troops plummeting down in force on the Greek island of Crete by parachute and glider plane were reported early today to have failed to gain any key points in their audacious battle with British imperial and Greek defenders.

Nazi shock troops also tried to storm the island's rocky shores from speedboat troop carriers but were repulsed, authoritative British sources said.

Cairo dispatches said 1,000 Nazis were killed or captured in the first day's fighting Tuesday.

Many of the German gliders were reported to have cracked up in landing. It was one of the most fantastic battles in history, marking as it did the first use of glider-borne troops, and the use of blitz tactics in an ancient land of forbidding terrain where guerrilla bands have battled down through the centuries.

British sources stated without giving details that the German attempt to land troops by speedboats to support some 4,500 aerially transported soldiers had been defeated—by strong British naval action, it was indicated.

A measure of support was given to this by the Germans themselves in claiming direct bomb hits on seven British warships, including a battleship, thus implying that the British navy was at work.

Later a British broadcast heard by CBS said, "Latest reports from Crete indicate the British, New Zealand and Greek forces . . . still are rounding up the Germans who have landed from the air."

London Shows Confidence.

Nowhere on the embattled island, informed London sources said this morning, have the German detachments gained a foothold.

London manifested confidence that the Allies could hold the island—the key to the Middle East and thus perhaps to the safety of the Suez Canal itself—and Berlin adopted an attitude of great caution.

Whatever their motive—and in this connection it was recalled that the Nazi high command had been similarly reserved in the opening phases of nearly every great contest since the war began—German spokesmen implied that it was too early to talk much about Crete. True, they said, the Nazi

Talmadge Threatens To Close Market Unless Prices Go Up

Salaries of 2 Officials Trimmed on Probation Basis.

Governor Talmadge yesterday threatened to close down the new State Farmers' Market unless farmers get better prices for their produce and slashed the salaries of two market officials, while Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder pleaded for the Governor's support in developing and helping to make the market a success.

These were highlights of the second day's verbal clash between the chief executive and his political ally. The controversy, it was said, grew out of the Governor's desire to put Mercer Harbin in charge of the market.

Harbin asserted last night, however, he would not have the market job under any circumstances. "They offered it to me some time ago, but I told the Governor

Intensive Test At Oglethorpe Shows Results

Six Students Qualify for B. A. Degrees in 20 Months.

(Editor's Note: Six students, survivors of an 11-man "brain team," have just finished the first lap of an educational experiment—qualifying for four-year bachelor of arts degrees in less than 20 months. They face four more years of study which Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University, believes will make them "the best educated college men ever to graduate from an American institution." Here is what one of them, the scholastic leader of the group, tells of his experience.)

By MARSHALL ASHER JR. A little less than two years ago I graduated from high school in Athens, Texas, and now I have just been told that I have completed the work necessary for a bachelor's degree with an average of approximately 95 for the entire work.

Technically that is the benefit that I have received from my work as part of the exceptional educational experiment of Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe University. However, as I will attempt to explain, I consider this only part of my gain from my experience of the past two years and not the most important part.

In the summer following my graduation from high school, I entered a state-wide contest for a six-year scholarship to Oglethorpe and won second place. About the middle of September I was notified to report to Oglethorpe.

I got to school a week late and met 10 other boys who were there for the experiment. First I was notified of the conditions governing my scholarship. I was guaranteed my room, board and regular school fees if I would follow a set of instructions necessary to the fulfillment and success of the experiment. The most important of these were that I buy all my books and keep them, that I attend each Sunday a different church to be designated by Dr. Jacobs, that I not smoke, drink liquor, gamble, or swear, that I remain in my room every evening except Saturday for the purpose of preparing my next day's lessons, and that I follow a daily schedule of living with time allotted for classes, meals, exercise, reading in the library, study and sleep.

Study All Subjects. Then I was told that the education that I was to receive would include every subject taught in the university and would take six years of study at 11 months a year. And probably the most important thing I was told was that I would take twice the load of the average student and be expected to make an average of 90 or better.

COLLEGE SPEED-UP—These are six students at Oglethorpe University who are taking an exceptional college course and which Marshall Asher, one of the sextette, has described in an article written especially for the Associated Press.

These conditions were necessary to make possible the experiment which was designed to prove that the college student of today is wasting half his time and that if he was removed from the country club activities of the modern college he could do twice the work he is now doing.

And so we 11 boys went to work. We were all far from home, strangers to each other, and facing a rather difficult and bewildering task. However, under the leadership of our "Don," Frederick Goss, of Proctor, Vt., we soon got acquainted and down to our work.

Six Going Strong.

That first semester we carried 26 hours including astronomy, Latin, Greek, geology, mathematics, ancient history, history and appreciation of music. Old Testament, mythology and etymology and cosmic history.

At the present time we have narrowed down to six as the result of boys dropping out for different reasons. But we six are going strong and have proven the first step of the experiment. Now remains to be seen what our extensive education will mean to us.

In order to make it more practical and concrete, each year from now on each of us will teach some class in the university for the experience and the mastery of the subject. The idea is that we master each course so well that we be able to teach it. At the end of our six years, and not until then, we will be given the degree of bachelor of arts, the master of arts, and a special degree for this extensive, the doctor of arts and sciences.

As I said, we are going strong and the reasons for this are more than just the view of a very good education. The attendant advantages and gains are just as powerful and maybe more attractive force. By that I mean first the fellowship that has grown between us which, as a result of almost constant association, is very close and very strong.

Enter Social Activity.

We have been able to enter into the intramural activities of the school and take part in a good share of the social activities. And in my opinion there are some more or less intangible gains that I have acquired as a result of my participation in the experiment which the college student does not usually get and which I value on par with my education. Among these are such things as the order in which I am taking my courses and the fact that they are planned by an experienced person and will avoid the usual errors of the hither-to planning. Also, I have been able to learn to evaluate time as a result of my minute schedule and have been able to form habits which otherwise would have possibly been discarded.

I have been required to keep my books and build up a library, a thing which a college student does and which every college graduate wishes he had done. But the thing that I value most as my profit of my experience of the past two years has been the gradual formation of a sound and happy philosophy of life as a result of my study of different religions and as result of the courses I have taken.

I think our experiment has been and will be a success, and regardless of its effect on American education I am looking forward to the seventh year so that I might further prove it when I leave school.

Renaming Chief Cates Predicted

Re-election of H. J. "Heine" Cates, chief of the city sanitary department, July 7 to a new four-year term was forecast freely yesterday as Cates was celebrating his 25th consecutive year as an employee of the sanitary department.

Twenty-five years ago Cates came to the sanitary department to repair a crane which was out of order, a job which was expected to last two weeks at the maximum. He expected to return to his electrical repair business after that, but after 25 years, he had not gone back yesterday. The city health board employed Cates as

Scott Candler Urges Passage Of Hospital Bill

Through Amendment New Grady Unit May Be Built.

Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner, yesterday urged approval June 3 of the constitutional amendment authorizing local governments to pool their resources to construct and operate hospitals.

Candler's support for the proposal, which will provide a means through which a new Grady hospital and Battle Hill sanatorium can be built and conducted jointly by Fulton and DeKalb counties, came at a public hearing at 8 o'clock Friday night, May 30, at the Kirkwood school at which all constitutional amendments affecting Fulton and DeKalb citizens will be discussed.

In urging approval of the amendment Candler pointed out:

1. DeKalb county and Fulton county will be able to operate a combined hospitalization service more cheaply than they could separate institutions.
2. Citizens of Atlanta would be relieved of the $800,000 annual cost of maintaining Grady and other hospitals and the cost would be distributed equally to the two affected counties on a per diem basis.

3. Such operation would be equitable and would provide a means through which DeKalb and Fulton county citizens could obtain necessary hospital services with each county paying its way.

4. It would eliminate all question as to whether the counties carry their pro rata share of the expense of maintaining the institutions, a condition which exists under the present arrangement.

"I am confident that approval of the Hospital Authority amendment will furnish a means through which a very perplexing and ever-growing problem can be solved," Candler said.

"It seems to me that it will be mutually beneficial to Fulton and DeKalb citizens and will form a basis on which there can be no future question as to whether we are carrying our full share of hospital expense. I hope the people of our counties give it a large vote because we are vitally affected.

"Another reason for voting for the proposal is that we do not have to enter into the program unless we are convinced it is the best thing to do, but if we should kill the amendment, we will bar similar solution of hospitalization by other counties of Georgia because the proposal has state-wide application."

AFL Unionists Defy Pickets, Return to Jobs

Frey Leads Shipyard Workers in West Coast Action.

By The Associated Press.

AFL shipyard workers marched back to their jobs through picket lines of other union members yesterday after striking machinists had rejected a plea of Governor Culbert L. Olson that they return to work in 11 shipyards in the San Francisco Bay area.

John Frey, head of the AFL metal trades council, led a group of 500 men into the Moore shipyard in Oakland, saying defiantly, "God help the man who tries to stop me." Frey and other AFL leaders have termed the strike unauthorized.

Smaller groups went back to work in other plants. A thousand or more pickets made no attempt to stop them and no disorder was reported at any of the yards.

AFL and CIO Involved.

The machinists, members of both the AFL and CIO, are asking wage increases from a new contract scale of $1.12 to $1.15 an hour and double time for overtime.

The 11 yards, closed for 12 days, have $500,000,000 of defense orders.

Negotiations between southern bituminous coal operators and the CIO United Mine Workers were broken off in New York after the operators, in a series of newspaper advertisements, had assailed John L. Lewis, the miners' president, as a man who would become "dictator of the country."

K. C. Adams, Lewis' official spokesman, countered that the southern owners were "mock patriots."

The dispute over a new two-year contract now goes to the Defense Mediation Board in Washington.

Shell Loading Plant.

The second strike in two weeks tied up construction of the government's $30,000,000 shell-loading plant near Ravenna, Ohio, but the walkout was short lived. Between 5,000 and 7,000 AFL laborers walked out, demanding wage increases of 25 cents an hour from the present average of 65 cents.

The workers agreed to return to their posts today and to enter a 10-day period of negotiations.

Final relays of the more than 80,000 employees of the Ford Motor Company in its giant River Rouge factory and the smaller Lincoln motor plant cast their votes last night in the biggest employee election ever held by the National Labor Relations Board.

The voting was to decide whether the workers wished to be represented in collective bargaining negotiations with the company by the United Automobile Workers (CIO), the American Federation of Labor's Federal Union, or neither.

Counting of the votes will begin today.

President Reid Robinson of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers asked the Office of Production Management to "investigate the possibility that Nazi German control of the American Potash & Chemical Corporation may be responsible for the company's stubborn prolongation of a strike which has stopped its production."

The firm, said Robinson, is the largest potash and borax producer in the nation.

Striking employees of the Hudson Motor Car Company at Detroit voted unanimously yesterday to return to work under an agreement negotiated between the company and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) providing for an increase of eight cents an hour. The strike, affecting 8,500 hourly workers, was called by the UAW-CIO last Thursday.

Nazi 'Chutists' Recall Ancient Crete Legend

Vast Caves May Serve as Hiding Place for Invaders.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Vast caves hidden in the fastness of mountainous Crete may serve Nazi parachutists pouncing on that strategic island near Greece, Turkey and North Africa.

Those caves, the legendary birthplace of Zeus, god of thunder, once sheltered hundreds of refugees from island insurrections.

The German troops landing from the air have found, too, a rocky land of snow-capped mountains and sparse vegetation, of hot Mediterranean sun and cool Mediterranean winds. It is a land of sudden, catastrophic earthquakes and malaria and a rich field for archaeological research into ancient Mediterranean cultures.

Legend Recalled.

The Germans' coming on wings of fabric recalls the legend of Daedalus, a mythical Greek who was supposed to have escaped from Crete with his son Icarus by flying with wings of wax and feathers.

Daedalus also is credited with being the builder of the famous labyrinth of Minos, legendary king of Crete. In this labyrinth lived the Minotaur, fabulous Cretan monster with the body of a man and the head of a bull, who fed on Athenian youths until Theseus slew him.

A land barrier between the island-studded Aegean sea to the north and the open Mediterranean to the south, Crete lies as a bar 150 miles long between Africa and Europe. On its African side it is almost harborless, but on the north, facing Greece, it has several large natural harbors, such as Suda bay and the Mirabello bay, where sizable fleets may anchor.

Mostly Christian.

German landings so far have been reported on this northern coast, at points which cover three-quarters of this coastline. Behind lies the rugged, stony, waste which makes up two-thirds of the island and supports a primitive agriculture.

The normal island population is 387,000. The largest city, Candia, near which some of the German troops have landed, has 33,000. The capital, Canea, has 26,604. Inhabitants are mostly Greek Orthodox Christians, with a minority of Moslems dating back to Ottoman Empire rule.

To defend this island the British are known to have at least one New Zealand division and "a substantial number of Australians."

Leading them is General Bernard C. Freyberg, a New Zealand dentist, soldier of fortune, World War hero and personal friend of Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

Often Wounded.

This daring and resourceful officer was wounded nine times in the last great war, cited seven times for bravery and won two of Britain's highest military awards.

He saw action in Belgium and Gallipoli and it was on the latter disastrous expedition that he won one of his decorations by swimming in the nude half a mile to the Turkish shore from a destroyer, towing a canvas canoe. Ashore, he lighted flares to distract the Turks from the real landings at other points and then swam back to his ship.

A superb swimmer, he was a New Zealand champion at 17 and once came within 500 yards of swimming the English channel. He fought with Pancho Villa in Mexico; then came across the United States to sail for England, where the war was on. Joining a naval division being organized by Churchill, Freyberg met the man who became his fast friend.

Churchill, then first lord of the admiralty, often visited Freyberg at the hospital where he was recovering from one of his war wounds.

Farm Workers Give Evidence In Decapitation

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 21.—(P)—Two persons who were in a Baldwin county turnip field March 25 when Mrs. Robert Phillips, farm wife, was decapitated by an airplane testified before a general court martial at the naval air station here today that the plane's right wing tip "skimmed the ground" shortly before it struck her.

Sam Ard, owner of the field, and his son, Duane Ard, testified that the plane dived at them and other workers in the field after other witnesses had told the court a naval plane with a number corresponding to that flown on the same day by Ensigns Joseph E. Thompson, of Healdsburg, Cal., and Paul E. Brown, of Chicago, had dived at them in various adjacent fields.

At the conclusion of today's testimony, Commander Charles A. Nicholson, president of the court, adjourned it until tomorrow morning when it will proceed to Ard's farm, 35 miles northwest of here.

TAXI DRIVERS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCES

CLEARWATER, Fla., May 21.—(P)—Two St. Petersburg taxi drivers convicted of second-degree murder in the bludgeoning slaying of Mrs. Ruth Rawlins March 12 were sentenced to life imprisonment today—maximum sentence under the law.

Frank B. Hogan, one of the defendants, said the verdict was "a great mistake" but the other convict, Earl J. Allen, in whose garage apartment the slaying took place, said nothing.

MURDER DEFENDANT WEEPS AT TRIAL

BOSTON, May 21.—(P)—Blond Ruth Steadman surrendered to emotion for the first time today in her trial for the murder of Robert Emery, and burst into tears when she heard a motherly-appearing policewoman quote her as saying she still loved Emery and did not care if she went to the electric chair—a penalty Massachusetts never has exacted from a woman.

She had listened with lowered eyes, but otherwise impassively, while three letters she wrote to her married lover were read to the jury, and while his widow, Ruth Emery, 25, mother of his two children, testified her husband told her of his relationship with the defendant.

It was the testimony of Mrs. Agnes Callahan, a policewoman, that shattered her composure.

'Happy Days' Symbol Has New Meaning

Streets Named for Linder, Talmadge Cross at State Market.

Out at the new $300,000 farmers market two planks nailed to a four-by-four post mark the corner of Talmadge drive and Linder street.

Talmadge drive is the broad boulevard which cuts through the heart of the market, wide enough for four trucks to drive abreast. Linder street is a less pretentious but still spacious thoroughfare which crosses the "T" of Talmadge drive.

The corner marker, and the market itself, is a symbol of happy days when Governor Talmadge and Commissioner of Agriculture Linder were bosom pals.

Now Governor Talmadge is saying harsh things about Linder and the people he employs to run the market, and accuses Linder of letting the farmer get taken in by "pin hooks."

Linder is answering vigorously in the public prints, saying the whole trouble is caused by his refusal to hire one Mercer Harbin as his market manager.

So the Governor threatens to close the market.

And Mr. Linder stands firm. Which leads political observers to watch with interest to see which plank comes off the four-by-four.

Early Release Of Americans On Ship Fades

Germans Consider Status of 140 Aboard Zamzam.

BERLIN, May 21.—(P)—Hopes of speedy release for at least part of the 140 Americans from the Egyptian steamer Zamzam, sunk by a German raider en route from New York to Alexandria, were obscured tonight by tangled questions of international law.

The Germans have stated unequivocally that all of the Americans aboard the Zamzam, which for a time was feared lost with all 322 passengers and crew, were brought through the British blockade and safely at St. Jean de Luz, France, and early today a German spokesman forecast their speedy release for return to the United States through neutral countries. But later, authorized German sources said German military authorities first would make sure that 24 American ambulance drivers who were en route to Africa aboard the Zamzam would be in no position to reveal military secrets to the British.

Donald Heath, first secretary of the United States embassy here, called at the foreign office and was understood to have been assured that a United States consular official would be allowed to visit the captured Americans.

From Bordeaux, United States Consul Henry S. Waterman left immediately for the little seaside resort near the Spanish frontier. The status of American passengers other than ambulance drivers was not discussed by Nazi commentators, except to say that other categories would, of course, be handled on their individual merits. (Many of the Zamzam passengers consisted of missionaries en route to African posts with their families.)

German spokesmen were positive on one point: They said there was no question but that the Zamzam's cargo included articles considered here to be contraband, such as munitions, motorcars and machines, and that, therefore, the German navy had an unquestionable right to sink the ship and seize its cargo.

Bible School Workers To Plan Church Program

Bible school workers of all denominations will meet today and tomorrow at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer to plan a program for summer Bible schools.

Each session will begin at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Dr. Ryland Knight and Dr. Willis A. Sutton will be the speakers.

farmer can get better prices over the telephone than he can get at the market. I hope this'll take some of the midwest off that market crowd."

In cutting the salaries of the two market officials, the Governor said he was placing them on probation explaining, "I'm going to trim 'em a little and put 'em on probation. If they get better prices for the farmers I might raise 'em."

Linder said he was proud of the market and had devoted seven years of his life to its development.

"The market is generally recognized by everybody as being an outstanding success," the commissioner said. "I shall continue to devote every effort to make the market a success and develop the best market system in the United States."

"The Governor can be a wonderful help in this and I'm counting on his support."

"We do have second-grade vegetables coming on that market and they will not command the prices of the No. 1 vegetables. We have to let these vegetables in and sell for whatever price they will command, or else deny the farmer any market at all for his second-grade products."

Drought Problem.
In criticizing conditions at the market, the Governor emphasized that the farmers were having to fight the worst drought in 26 years and that their produce was bringing the lowest prices he had known in his lifetime.

Commenting still further, the Governor said he did not think it was unfortunate that his charges came just when the market was getting started. He contended his remarks might have the effect of "waking up" those in charge of the market.

Governor Talmadge's references to some Atlanta produce dealers as "pin-hooks," who beat down the prices paid to farmers at state market, were described in a statement signed by nine local dealers as "coming close to libel."

"Cost Growers."
The Governor's statements, the group said, "have cost the growers of Georgia several thousand dollars in the price of beans in the last two days because the dealers, thrown into confusion, have dropped out of the market."
"If the new state market becomes a political football these merchants will be obliged to build themselves a market place which will be run by businessmen and in an orderly and efficient manner, subject to the laws of supply and demand," their statement said.

The statement was signed by Herschell Sorrells, W. H. Haynie, H. P. Leonard, L. R. Davis, Clayton Elliott, W. W. Lowe, L. S. Copeland, George W. Kirk, and L. A. Warnock.

AAA Payments In State Total $10,000,000

Farmers Paid for Partici- pation of Soil Sav- ing Plan.

ATHENS, Ga., May 21.—(AP)—Administrative Officer T. R. Breedlove, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, announced payments of more than $10,000,000 to Georgia farmers for participation in conservation work last year.

Cotton and wheat parity payments of about $8,000,000 were paid last summer and early fall. Of the anticipated 142,000 applications in Georgia, all but about 3 per cent, or a total of $10,150,000, have been certified.

The payments were for diversion of acreage from soil depleting to soil conserving crops, or for other soil building practices.

LOOKS FORWARD—Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, addressing the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association, said the newspaper of the future would take less time to read. The publishers met in annual convention in Edgewater Park, Miss.

OFFICERS—A. W. Huckle, left, of Rock Hill, S. C., retiring chief of Dixie's publishers, greets Charles P. Manship, Baton Rouge, the new president. Next is Walter C. Johnson, Chattanooga, reappointed secretary-manager; and James E. Chappell, Birmingham, reappointed treasurer. The new president is publisher of the Baton Rouge (La.) State Times and Morning Advocate. It was the 39th annual gathering of southern newspaperdom's top-flight executives and owners.

Army Has But Few Secrets, Publishers Told

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., May 21.—(AP)—Charles P. Manship, publisher of the Baton Rouge (La.) State Times and Advocate, today had been chosen president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association to succeed A. W. Huckle, president of the Rock Hill (S. C.) Herald, who was named chairman of the board.

James E. Chappell, president of the Birmingham (Ala.) News and Age-Herald, was elected treasurer while re-election of Walter C. Johnson as SNPA secretary-manager was left to the board. The association is in convention here.

Lieutenant Tynell Krum, new public relations officer of the Eighth Naval District, and Captain Noel Macy, Westchester, N. Y., assigned to the War Department public relations office, told the publishers common sense was the keynote of the War and Navy Departments in getting all possible information to the public.

"Our purpose is not to hide but to give you all the facts possible," Krum said.

Macy said the "Army has no important military secrets to shield and there now are 400 public relations officers in camps whose job it is to give out news of the training areas."

Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, in discussing the newspaper of the future, said the papers would be smaller, better edited and printed and that the newspaper's future lay in making the product to good the public would demand the newspaper regardless of what happened in radio, television and other fields.

Jack Langhorne, of the Huntsville (Ala.) Times, said the newspaper of the future would probably be tabloid in size and much better printed with paper and ink probably approaching the quality of the magazines of today.

anything. When it came to handing out jobs in America, these boys would have been among the first to be considered, and some of them had left good jobs.

It was harder to find out why they were setting out on this dangerous expedition, to serve a country not their own, to enter a war for which they had not been drafted. Certainly nobody had pushed them into it. They groused about the difficulties they had had in enlisting in the corps.

They were allergic to heroics and on the defensive. I got the impression that a great many people had asked them the same question before they embarked for France: "Why do you have to go and stick your necks out?" Certainly nobody had sent them off under the taunt of "slacker." Quite the contrary. They had had struggles with their families before they got where they were.

Not All Earnest.

Nor were they, for the most part, earnest young men anxious to do good in the world, or fanatically devoted to the cause of saving the world. I remember what Charlie McCarthy said when I asked him why he had enlisted. "What would you do if your name was Charlie McCarthy?" he asked ironically. At first they all cracked like that.

One of them never dropped his flip manner for a second. He played the slot machines all the way over, and insisted that he was going over to help the Allies because it was an old family custom. I thought he'd crack up the first time he ever saw real action. Afterward, in Paris, I learned that he had seen lots of it. And he was among those photographed on the Zamzam. I was wrong.

But I got to be friends with three or four of the others, and eventually they talked about the whys and wherefores of finding it their business to help the French.

Seen as Realistic.

They hedged away from idealism as from hot stoves. They were realistic, unillusioned, candid, and straightforward. I did not hear one of them talk about saving the world for democracy. In fact what they thought about democracy in some of its present manifestations sounded like the sort of critique I had heard from young Nazis a decade ago in Germany.

They thought most democratic politicians were "fatheads"; they thought there was something rotten about a social system that couldn't solve the question of unemployment; they weren't highly pleased with their own education; they loathed "Reds," and thought less than nothing of the results of the last war.

Yet, there they were, going over to get into another, via the ambulance corps. To help save Frenchmen from Germans. None of them disliked Germans or Germany. On the contrary. They thought the Germans "a great people."

Furthermore, they were highly critical of French policy, and not exaggeratedly pro-British. They also had no illusions about war. "We've been told about the horrors of the last war all our lives," they said.

Came Out of Same Schools.

To put it briefly, they came out of the same schools, had been subjected to the same influences, and had many of the same opinions as the college youth who carry picket signs at meetings of the White Committee. Why had they reached different conclusions?

I wrote down some of the answers:

"It's hokey to say this is not our war. America couldn't live in a world run by the Axis powers. We'd have to go Nazi. We are going to go into the war eventually anyhow. We want to start from the outset."

"I don't hate Germany, but I loathe Nazism. It's silly and barbaric. The only thing I'd fight for is the right to a private life. If you can't have a private life, what's the use of having any?"

"I lived in Italy for a while. They open your letters."

"I can't stand the hypocrisy about our being neutral. Nobody's neutral on Fascism. You are either for it or against it. Those who pretend they're neutral are pro-Fascist."

"The United States could have prevented this war if the politicians had had more guts. Why don't any of them tell the people what they really think?"

One Hates Extremism.

"All the extremists are on the Nazi side. I hate extremism. Only a moderate world is tolerable."

That remark haunted me. For there was a young man taking the most extreme step of risking his life in order to defeat extremism.

I guess that is what the war is really about, at that.

I heard about them afterward in Paris. The authorities said they were wonderful. Two of them got the Croix de Guerre. Vichy would have dismissed them with that honor. If it were adventure they were after they could have quit.

But they didn't. They came home, reorganized under the British, and went out again. Convinced that an American's right to a private life can be as menaced in Suez as at the Panama Canal.

Since I started to write this, the radio announced that they have been saved.

Thank God!

Georgia To Get TVA Dam

MURPHY, N. C., May 21.—(AP) Construction of four new dams, two in this section of western North Carolina, one not far over the North Carolina line in Tennessee, and one in north Georgia, is being planned by the Tennessee Valley authority, it was learned here today from reliable sources.

Two of the proposed dams would be for power purposes and two for storage. North Carolina would get a power dam and a storage dam, east Tennessee a power dam, and north Georgia a storage dam.

All available office space in Murphy has been rented by the engineering and land acquisition divisions of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the offices were opened this morning with full forces in each department.

As proposed, the four dams would be built as follows:

1. A power dam on Hiwassee river near Appalachia in Cherokee county.
2. A power dam on the Ocoee river near Ocoee dam No. 2 in East Tennessee, about 12 miles from the North Carolina state line and towards Chattanooga.

3. A storage dam above Hiwassee dam on the Hiwassee river in North Carolina.

4. A storage dam on Nottely river in north Georgia.

Nottely river rises in the southeastern part of Union county and flows in a northwesterly direction into North Carolina and empties into the Hiwassee river. It flows past Blairsville, Ga., in Union county.

Indictments Charge Drug Act Violation

U. S. Jury at Rome Re- turns Counts Against Georgians.

ROME, Ga., May 21.—Two prominent north Georgia physicians and a druggist were named in two federal grand jury indictments returned here this afternoon for alleged violation of the narcotic law.

Indicted as co-defendants in one bill naming four others were Dr. Eugene I. Gilmore, physician, and Lloyd C. Waldrop, druggist, of Tallapoosa. Dr. Lewis Wayne Van Zandt, Calhoun physician, also was named in a 11-count bill charging narcotic law violation.

Included in today's federal indictments is a four-count indictment charging Charles P. Ayers, Rome merchant, with buying and possessing goods stolen from interstate commerce.

The indictment against the Tallapoosa physician and druggist accuses them and Clarence L. Smith, of Atlanta, and Milton M. Gable, of Tallapoosa; Mrs. L. E. Thompson and Ida Mae Jones, of Tallapoosa, with conspiracy to violate the narcotic law during a three-year period, beginning June 1, 1938, by acquiring and dispensing quantities of narcotic drugs for illegal use.

The Calhoun physician was accused of dispensing or giving hypodermic tablets of morphine sulphate without proper registration and tax payment as provided by law.

120,600 Tons Of Pipe Bought By Plantation

Company Encouraged by Proposed U. S. Legislation.

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsful in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under an absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Jacobs Drug Stores and drug stores everywhere.—(adv.)

from Baton Rouge, La., to Greensboro, N. C.

Although the Georgia legislature has refused to grant pipe line concerns the right of eminent domain, which would enable them to cross railroad tracks and state highways, a bill permitting private interests to construct lines in the interest of national defense has been introduced in congress.

Meanwhile, the Plantation company from its New York offices announced plans to develop its new line that would enter the state near Bremen and go into South Carolina near Greenville. It would intersect at Atlanta with the incomplete Southeastern Pipe Line that is now being operated between Port St. Joe, Fla., and Bainbridge. Steve Clay, attorney representing the Southeastern company, commented yesterday on the new legislation introduced by the President. "If the law is approved," he said, "we would begin immediately to complete our line, from Bainbridge to Chattanooga." Officials of the Plantation company would not comment on the purchase of additional equipment, other than to say it had been decided to "take a chance" on the results of the bill introduced in the lower house by Representative Cole, Democrat, Missouri.

Large Deficit, Bugg Declares Before Board

A. B. & C. Lost $3,174,773 From 1927 to 1940, He Says.

Declaring his company had shown a deficit totaling $3,174,773 from 1927 to 1940, Colonel B. L. Bugg, president of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast railroad, testified yesterday as hearings began before an emergency board appointed last week by President Roosevelt to investigate the dispute between the railroad and its 375 engine, train and yard service employees.

The hearings before the board—a fact-finding body created by presidential proclamation in a move which postponed a strike on the railroad called for last Friday—got under way with Dr. George W. Stocking, professor of economics at the University of Texas, and now on leave from assignment with the Department of Justice, as chairman.

Serving with Dr. Stocking as board members are Brigadier General Hamilton S. Hawkins, United States Army, retired, and Houston Thompson, Washington attorney.

First With A. B. & C. Colonel Bugg told the board that he first became associated with the A. B. & C.'s predecessor company, the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic railroad in 1912 as assistant general manager.

"The pay basis established by the federal court in 1921 has continued," he told the board, pointing out that the basis of pay set by the government was lower than the present demands by the two unions, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

He stated further that "not a stockholder has received a benefit from the A. B. & C. or its predecessor, the A. B. & C."

Stock Wiped Out. "When the A. B. & C. was organized in 1927," he continued, "all of the common stock was wiped out and the bondholders received 60 per cent on the dollar. We owe taxes now amounting to between $400,000 and $500,000, and have owed them since 1937."

Referring to demands of the brotherhoods for increases in pay which they claim would make their rates standard with those of neighboring lines, Colonel Bugg said increases to the 375 workers involved would mean a monthly increase of $20,000 in the pay roll.

In this connection, he pointed out that increases to the engine, train and yard service men would mean the company would, in line with its policy, be forced to grant raises to the other employees on the road, which would mean an increase in the monthly pay roll of $31,000.

E. E. Oster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and C. H. Keenan, vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, introduced a lengthy statement outlining their position and stating their side of the dispute.

Unions Statement. The statement read, in part: "The rates of pay now in effect for the employees we represent are the same as those established by the court in 1921."

"Although the A. B. & C. took advantage of the voluntary 10 per cent deduction to which employees on other railroads subscribed, and placed it in effect on its property during the depression, it has persistently and consistently declined to give its employees the benefits of increases that have been placed in effect for employees on other lines since 1921."

"There is no reason why the employees of the A. B. & C. should be required or expected to work for less than the standard, or going rates of pay applicable to employees for similar service on the other railroads, especially the Atlantic Coast Line railroad which owns the A. B. & C."

U. S. Steel Plants Running Full Blast

NEW YORK, May 21. (P)—Operating subsidiaries of U. S. Steel Corporation, largest steel maker in the country, are working at 100 per cent of capacity.

Only once before, for a two-week period ended January 27, this year, has the steel giant run plants at full rated capacity.

Corporation officials pointed out that plants were running full blast in an attempt to compensate as far as possible for the slowdown which occurred for lack of fuel as a result of the recent soft coal stoppage.

The corporation's operating rate has risen about 5 1-2 points in the past week and 8 points from the 92 per cent of capacity two weeks ago, when was the low mark during the coal shortage.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent scanty passages with annoying burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisons to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisons—waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Defense Bonds

Total $257,646,000

WASHINGTON, May 21. (P)—

Secretary Morgenthau announced today cash receipts of the Treasury from the sale of defense savings bonds in the first 17 days of the program totaled $257,646,000.

Face value of the bonds was slightly higher, since some of them are sold on a discount basis.

Morgenthau made no comment on the figures which he made public in a brief statement, but recently he said at a press conference that his advisers had told him that $300,000,000 would be a satisfactory total for the month of May.

Armada of 80 Giant Transport Planes Being Built for Airlines

Fleet Will Be Able To Carry 10,000,000 Pounds of Cargo From United States to Panama in 48 Hours.

KANSAS CITY, May 21.—(AP)—A fleet of 80 huge 72-ton planes, an armada capable of carrying 10,000,000 pounds of cargo from the United States to the Canal Zone in 48 hours, will be ready by next year, Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc., said today.

U. S. Coal Division Called Communist

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—A statement that the Interior Department's bituminous coal division was "loaded with Communists" was attributed to an unidentified administrative official of that agency today by a woman investigator for a house subcommittee on un-American activities. Mary Spargo, the investigator, told the subcommittee the official had informed her the Communist influence in the coal division was "so heavy and comes from the very top" that he feared loss of his job if he gave the committee any testimony on the subject.

Each plane, Frye said, would be powered by four engines of 2,500 horsepower with a top speed of 350 miles per hour and a capacity for 64 passengers or more than 100 soldiers. The plane was developed by Frye and Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman-pilot, and designed with their aid at the Lockheed company. TWA and Pan-American Airways each has ordered 40 of the air Leviathans, the first of which is scheduled for trial flight early next April.

The plane, described as the largest and fastest transport of a land plane type in the world, will be able to span the continent in 8 1/2 hours, the Atlantic Ocean in 12 to 14 hours. It can be flown at a height of 30,000 feet. The government approved production of the huge ships, Frye said, because of their potential usefulness as troop transports.

"To give you an idea what a fleet of 80 of these ships can do," said Frye, "listen to this: they can fly 10,000,000 pounds of cargo from the U. S. mainland to the Canal Zone in 48 hours, can transport three modern divisions of troops to Alaska in 36 hours, 24,000 troops to the Canal Zone in 36 hours, or 15,000 troops to Hawaii in 48, each ship can carry a 16-ton cargo."

Frye estimated that each would cost $500,000 and said the cabins would be supercharged to allow passenger comfort up to an altitude of 30,000 feet.

Russians Stage Anti-Chute Drill

MOSCOW, May 21.—(AP)—This capital called 7,000 citizens today to practice the repulse of parachute troops in special drills Saturday and Sunday, while the organ of the Young Communist League declared, "The present international situation compels us to prepare seriously day by day for war."

The Stalinist policy is one of armed preparedness, the paper, Comsomol Pravda, continued in a four-column article and, although Russia remains neutral, it criticized any spirit of pacifism.

The main conclusion to be drawn from the present war, the paper said, is this: "We cannot and must not be weaker militarily than our rivals. The Red army must be the strongest in the world."

Simultaneously, the army newspaper, Red Star, announced the summoning of reserve troops and junior commanders for their annual field training, and said that youths of the Lwow province in the western Ukraine (part of partitioned Poland) were awaiting a call to military service.

18 Taken Into Custody In Florida Alien Roundup

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 21.—(AP)—United States Immigration Service border patrolmen took 18 more aliens into custody today in what officials said was a continuation of the largest such roundup in Florida.

W. W. Eyster, southeastern director of the service, said several days ago that more than 150 aliens had been rounded up and the apprehensions have continued since then.

Today's arrests were three Germans and an Italian here, four Yugoslavs at Tampa and 10 of various nationalities at Miami.

FIGHTING MEN—In full field kit—the loose-baggy battle dress of the American foot soldier, these men set out on a tactical march as 30,000 soldiers started maneuvers at Fort Benning. The men taking part in the maneuvers come from the eastern seaboard and from the southeastern states. Before the war game began, the soldiers were told that this might be the last time they would have an opportunity to practice.

British Crush Effort To Raid Crete by Sea

parachutists had occupied certain strategic positions—but still Crete was a rough and harsh area and a hard military problem.

There was every sign that the Germans, urgently trying to carry through with what was from the beginning a mighty gamble, were losing men heavily; but there was no indication that these losses had affected their intention to knock out Crete at any cost and thus to remove an island barrier to the transport of troops in great numbers to the Syria of the Vichy collaborators.

In sum, this appeared to be the situation: It was still too early to know who is to have Crete, but it was equally likely that a decisive break would not now be long in coming.

There was fighting over great stretches of the island; it was, as British informants put, as great a single battle as the war had seen.

While it appeared that the number of German troops actually landed by parachute, glider and air transport was about 4,500, there was apparently reliable information that no fewer than 7,000 Nazis had been ordered in and that more thousands would be ferried across the 75 to 100 miles of water from the conquered Greek mainland.

Wave Follows Wave.

Three thousand of these came down on the shores of the bay, beginning at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday. Within two hours, Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the house of commons yesterday, "the greater part of these had been accounted for." The fighting there went on, but the situation was considered in hand as early as 9 p. m. Tuesday night, he said.

Another great air fleet attacked, meantime, in the Candia (Heraklion) sector, vicinity of the island's best air base, some 65 miles east of Cania and more than halfway of the island, and at Retima, 30 miles east of Cania.

Here, Stukas and Messerschmitts assaulted the defenders first; parachutes and gliders swarmed down.

Many of the latter crashed upon landing. The details of this attack on the midland sector were not divulged and Churchill told the house of commons they were not yet known.

Certainly, he warned the house, "we must expect that the fighting will continue in increasing severity."

Nazi Losses Severe.

German losses were said to have been severe; British losses comparatively light.

Crete, beloved of mythology, is one of the Mediterranean's larger islands, somewhat longer than New York's Long Island, but of rather the same general contour, traversed throughout its entire length by a chain of limestone mountains.

Some of these rise to 8,000 feet and their caverns and labyrinths are many and storied; one of them, near Mount Ida, supposedly was the retreat of the Minotaur monster.

Curiously enough, in mythology the architect Daedalus and his son, Icarus, fashioned wings in order to escape from the island to Sicily.

Britons were acutely excited by the battle of Crete—more than by any other German invasion, perhaps, because, rightly or wrongly, they saw it as a dress rehearsal for an attempt to invade this country.

Apart from the unquestioned importance of the Mediterranean island itself in the fight for the sea and Suez, it held the answers to many burning questions about the chances of success for aerial invasion.

30,000 in War Maneuvers at Fort Benning

ond Armored (hell on wheels) Division of 10,000 men and 2,000 vehicles headed into rough country yesterday morning, pushing forward under actual war conditions. Sweating tank crews were buttoned up inside their steel units with all doors closed tight as they plowed through sandy wastes and scrub pine, up hill and down, while comrades carried out scouting expeditions over no-more favorable terrain.

The (rolling) Fourth Division will be out this morning to join in the action. The general plan is for the Fourth to hold a river bank, permitting the armored group to penetrate the enemy lines and fan out in his rear.

In anticipation of the day when bombs may be dropping in their midst, the orders are for no two vehicles to be at any time within 35 yards of each other and all bivouacs must be camouflaged against enemy air observation.

The exercise will be divided into three phases, the first being the movement of the motorized and armored divisions to a rearward assembly area preparatory to a counter-offensive. After the assembly, the rolling Fourth will strike at the enemy along Upatoi creek.

When the motorized division has created a break in hostile positions, the Second Armored Division, taking a leaf from the notebook of the panzer divisions of Germany, will flow through into the enemy rear areas to disrupt communications, and harass enemy formations. The problem has been based on the assumption the blue army has been retiring slowly to the north awaiting a favorable opportunity to launch a surprise counterattack.

All Diplomats Ordered From Paris by Nazis

U. S., Other Legations Told Area Is Extended Operations Zone.

VICHY, France, May 21.—(AP)—The possibility of the restoration of Paris as the French government's full capital apparently was ended today by a German order for all foreign embassies and legations in Paris to withdraw their representatives by June 10.

After the fall of France last June, the French negotiated for the Vichy government to return to the German-occupied city and set up offices there. Negotiations have been continuing but diplomats here said it was believed the Berlin order today ended the possibility of any return by the French government to Paris.

The United States and other members of the foreign diplomatic corps here received word from their embassies and legations in Berlin that they would have to get their representatives out of Paris by June 10.

It was said the order came from the Wilhelmstrasse.

Representatives of foreign governments now in Paris have been occupied mainly with taking care of their citizens there and their interests in the occupied zone. Only Germany and Italy keep regular embassies in Paris. All diplomatic relations with the French government are handled at Vichy.

(In Washington, the United States State Department said the German government had requested the United States to remove its diplomatic representation from Paris because the Reich regards the Paris area as an extended zone of operations.)

The American representatives now in Paris, Edwin A. Plitt, Tyler Thompson and Lawrence W. Taylor, hold dual commissions from the State Department for both consular and diplomatic functions. It was not known in Vichy whether the order affects consular authorities.

Constitution Art Fair Entry Will Be Simple

Gay Scene Anticipated as Artists Paint in Park Here.

By WILLARD COPE.

Here's all you need to know—if you're an Atlanta or Georgia artist—to enter The Constitution's Art Fair at Joel Hurt Park May 30 and 31 with a minimum of trouble.

Ben Shute and members of his admissions committee will be on duty at the city auditorium from 8:30 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening Thursday, May 29, to inspect proposed entries in the art fair and issue numbered tickets designating the space made available to the individual exhibitor within the park.

Where to Apply.

Shute and his associates, including Marjorie Conant Bush-Brown and Hy Bizinsky, will be at library tables just within the Courtland street entrance of the city auditorium, reached by the new wooden ramp. Each exhibitor will bring his or her own works and materials, and after receiving a numbered ticket, will store the belongings in a large room on the floor below, provided by Burt Wellborn, auditorium manager. This room will be locked and guarded, Wellborn promises.

On Friday morning, each artist will take his stuff from this storage room to the park and there arrange it along the ornamental fence in his or her allotted space. The show lasts throughout the daylight hours. Friday evening, the entries and materials will be taken by the owner to the storage room for the night. Saturday they will be returned to the Art Fair by the owner.

That's how 'nple it is.

Gay Scene.

It will be a gay scene, with the fountain playing under full color, at the instance of George I. Simons, general manager of parks. Bands of the Commercial High school, directed by Ben Sisk, and O'Keefe Junior High school, directed by Owen Seitz, will furnish music. Throngs of visitors are anticipated, and it is very certain that numerous exhibitors will display their works and that many will paint during the two days. Among those presenting an application yesterday was a boy prodigy, Jack Davis Jr., 16, of 2840 Peachtree road, who does oils and cartoons with a sure hand. He's been drawing and painting since he started in kindergarten at 5.

U. S. Buys Large Order Of Bolivian Tungsten

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(AP)—Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, announced today the United States had purchased tungsten valued at approximately $25,000,000 from Bolivia.

The contract, made through the Metals Reserve Company, calls for delivery of ores and concentrates containing 4,400 tons of tungsten annually for the next three years. The unit price was $21 per short ton.

Bridges Accused As 'Leading Red'

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—(UP)—Harry Bridges not only is a Communist, but one of the leading Communists in the United States, testified Major Lemuel B. Schofield, chief of the Department of Immigration and Naturalization, at the deportation hearing today for the Australian-born labor leader.

His statement was in reply to a defense question as to whether he considered it "in accordance with American tradition respecting judicial processes" for him as chief of the immigration service to "play any role or exert any influence for the purpose of affecting final disposition of the case."

Four-Legged Chicken Hatched Near LaGrange

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., May 21.—Inspired probably by the publicity given mobile units, the urge to help has invaded the chicken yard of J. J. House, who lives five miles from LaGrange in the Gray Hill section. During the weekend he was displaying a four-legged chicken hatched on his farm during the week. There are two normal legs and immediately behind them are the two extra legs, but the chicken does not use them in walking. Otherwise, the chicken appears normal.

Valdosta Truck Sales Reported as Brisk

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. VALDOSTA, Ga., May 21.—C. M. Hinson, manager of the Valdosta state farmers' market, reported sales Monday at the season's peak. At a price range from $1.25 to $1.55 a total of 1,184 hampers of snapbeans were sold. Polebeans went at $2 per hamper. Sales of cabbage, squash, cucumbers, Irish potatoes and other truck went at satisfactory prices also, Hinson said.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning! The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills, 10¢ and 25¢.

YOUTH IN ART FAIR—He may not be the best, but at 16 Jack Davis Jr. is the youngest entrant in The Constitution's Art Fair scheduled for Joel Hurt Park, Friday and Saturday, May 30 and 31. He'll be among Atlanta and Georgia artists displaying their own works to thousands. Jack is shown doing a cartoon.

Presbyterian Unity Seen as Remote

MONTREAL, N. C., May 21.—(AP)—A report to be submitted to the 1941 session of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (southern), opening here tomorrow, indicates that there is no possibility that union between the northern and southern churches of the denomination will be brought about at this meeting.

The report was drafted by the assembly's committee on co-operation and union, which expressed the view, however, that some progress had been made.

Committees from both churches, in joint session, agreed to propose to their assemblies that "each assembly direct its responsible agency, or agencies, in the areas of foreign missions, home missions and Christian education."

McDaniel Concedes Race To Rival in Missouri Vote

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 21.—(AP)—Lawrence McDaniel conceded the election of Forrest C. Donnell as Missouri's first Republican Governor in eight years today in calling off his bitterly-waged contest for the office. To a specially-convened joint session of the legislature, the St. Louis Democrat sent this word: "I confess freely and frankly that the ballot boxes opened in Missouri in the gubernatorial contest to date have convinced me beyond question of doubt that Governor Forrest C. Donnell was elected."

Plain Words

Once again the United States can be thankful that, at this time of world crisis, a man such as Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, occupies the important post of Secretary of State. When the ambassador of the Vichy government of unoccupied France called, Tuesday, at the State Department to protest against this country's act in taking French ships in American harbors into "protective custody," Secretary Hull bluntly informed him that the United States is convinced that pro-Hitler elements are in complete control of the Vichy government and, under their guidance, France is violating terms of her armistice agreement.

It is up to France, said the secretary, to disprove this if it is not true, but he pointed to the granting of military advantages in French-controlled Syria, to the Germans, as proof of the violation.

Deeply as the American people sympathize with the people of France, there can no longer be doubt that the Vichy government is but a helpless puppet which must obey every pull of the strings from Berlin. Added to this is the self-evident fact that such men as Darlan and others are undoubtedly pro-Nazi in their views, regardless of the public opinion of their countrymen.

The truth must be faced. Liberty, equality and fraternity have been wiped from the French escutcheon. The achievements of the French revolution have gone with the wind and France henceforth can only be regarded as an ally, unwilling undoubtedly, but nevertheless an ally, with Germany.

La Belle France has been led in shackles into the camp of the enemy and there she is forced to prostitute herself in the cause of a tyranny totally opposed to everything she has held dear for more than a century and a half. Secretary Hull was exactly right in his response to the voluble but untenable protests of Ambassador Henry-Haye. It is well that he should be in no doubt as to the views of this country when he reports back to his fellow puppets at Vichy.

How wonderful, that all this new building goes up without the intelligent aid of sidewalk watchers, thousands of whom have lately been thrown into employment.

Pots and Pans

Every now or then someone suggests that the cause of national defense would be aided if the housewives of the nation would contribute their aluminum cooking utensils to the airplane factories. Plans are proposed for a nationwide drive to collect these discarded pots and pans.

Undoubtedly there would be a good psychological effect from such a drive. It would bring home, more forcibly than ever, the seriousness of the job that faces the United States—the job of smashing Hitler—and which is going to require all we can give if it is to be completed.

Other than the psychological value in a drive for old aluminum utensils, however, there is serious doubt it would be of practical aid.

According to men who know metals and who also know something of the manufacture of airplanes, the aluminum to be found, in small quantities, in the pans of the kitchens of America is not at all the same metal as the aluminum which goes into airplanes. In fact, a large proportion of that used in airplanes is duraluminum, a similar but more highly refined metal.

Housewives could help to overcome any aluminum shortage there may be, by conserving the utensils they now have and not buying any more than are essential of new ones. For this would permit a diversion of the basic metal, at the source, to defense purposes.

Incidentally it is now reported the government is taking steps to overcome any possible aluminum shortage by arranging for the erection of plants which will at least triple the present output of the metal.

In the meantime there are many ways by which housewives who wish to help can do so more effectively than by giving their used utensils. They could, for instance, save a few dimes a week out of their housekeeping budget with which to buy defense stamps. And they might save those by buying fewer new aluminum utensils and thus conserving the metal supply at its source of origin.

So intense was the cold at Little America, the fillings fell out of the Byrd party's teeth. It is ever thus. One gets away from it all; and into something else.

Disloyalty Afloat

Reports that union agents have interfered with the enlistment of merchant marine personnel in the Navy Reserve will bear the closest scrutiny. It long has been common knowledge that the merchant marine has been shot through with radical elements, and this further lawless manifestation can mean only that the country must take stern counter-measures to protect the ships so vital to the continued well-being of the nation.

The cause of the disloyalty of some seamen is hardly obscure. To an undeniable extent it has been the outgrowth of working conditions that made fertile the field in which alien agents have worked. But basically it has been a development of lax control on the part of the government over employment in this vital element of national life and the fact that subversive activities first were concentrated upon the possible sabotage of shipping in a time of civil unrest. One of the basic tenets of the world revolution of Bolshevism has been the cultivation of disaffection among seamen. The result is now becoming apparent.

The government has attempted to combat this condition in the last few years through improved working conditions and by the training of young men inculcated with American principles to fill the berths available. It long has been asserted that the merchant marine should be operated with personnel trained by the Navy and maintained under naval discipline under living and working conditions similar to that of the Navy. Every merchant marine officer should be a naval reservist, Navy trained and kept to the highest standards of the Navy. To permit any other condition is to take a fearsome chance with the most vital national interest in time of war.

If the new charges are corroborated, they can only mean that the time has come for definite and immediate action to cleanse the ranks of seamen of those who would hamstring American interests. The majority of the men are loyal. The leadership stands convicted of disloyalty.

The process of removing drudgery from the soldier life is far from complete, however, as one must still salute a second lieutenant by hand.

Nutrition Standards

With the rising costs of living and with the probability of war standards of supply to come, it is of renewed importance that the housewives of the United States learn the proper standards of nutrition. By so doing they will be able to feed their families properly for the best maintenance of health and energy, and at the same time conserve the family budget by the use of lower cost foods.

Thus the announcement by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, co-ordinator of health, welfare and related activities, that simply worded nutrition standards for national defense will be broadcast next Sunday evening assumes exceptional importance. The broadcast will be on the American Forum of the Air, on the Mutual chain, at 7 o'clock, E. S. T.

With the necessity of supplying Britain not only with war equipment, but with sufficient foods to properly maintain her people, there is likelihood that this nation will have to drastically conserve its food supplies before the war is over. Too, added parity payments to farmers, voted recently by the congress, cannot help but result in higher prices for products of the farms.

The housewife who best feeds her family, for their physical stamina, on the simplest and most economical of foods, will be doing an important job in the problem of national defense.

"Tomorrow never comes," said the last year's popular song. But can our hard-pressed defense planners depend on it?

MADAME SECRETARY.
(From The Brunswick News.)

The Valdosta Times is but one of a number of newspapers taking the position that when Senator Byrd recently demanded that Mrs. Perkins be ejected from the cabinet for her alleged "bumbling" and "lack of courage" in facing the present labor problem he struck a responsive chord with the majority of loyal American citizens.

The Times thinks in the present emergency people of the country are perfectly willing to make sacrifices to insure victory against the aggressor nations, but they are getting tired of a few high-handed labor leaders interfering with the defense program.

When the young men of the nation are being called away from their regular employment and asked to give a year's time to training for armed service at $21 per month," says the paper, "and when millions of others are facing the prospect of vastly increased taxes and others are being asked to put up with inconveniences and interruptions in their regular routine of living in an effort to make the nation and Britain strong enough to meet the threat of Hitler and his crowd, there can be no possible justification for the attitude of these misguided few leaders in labor circles."

For many months it has been apparent to the Times that Mrs. Perkins is not suited for the place she occupies. She has been entirely too soft in the handling labor disputes, it thinks, and she has lost the confidence of management and labor by her fumbling of important issues.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

ARNOLD'S REPORT WASHINGTON, May 21.—As befits a man in his position, Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Air Corps and deputy chief of staff, made a pretty factual report on his return from Britain. He brought back a quantity of data on many aspects of the war, from Britain's acute need for more heavy bombers to the current shipping situation. None of the data occasioned much surprise, since the facts were already known here in general outline.

What is extremely striking, however, is the unanimity with which men who have heard Arnold interpret his factual report. Discussion of the matter with several did not disclose a single dissent from the view that Arnold's report meant Britain would not hold out for many months longer without active American aid. As one man put it, "Arnold painted a picture of a nation bleeding from many wounds, and likely to succumb pretty soon without a transfusion. Anyone can see that the transfusion can only come from us, and that the mere sending of more stuff across the Atlantic, if it can be got across, will not be enough."

CUMULATIVE It is especially significant that agreement was also general on the prime significance of the part of Arnold's report devoted to the shipping situation. This, it was said, was the determining factor in the above conclusion.

Not long ago certain facts on the shipping situation were presented in this space, of which the most notable was the authoritative estimate that 1941 would see a net loss of 30 per cent of the British merchant marine. Arnold's more recent estimates have not been divulged, but it is understood that if they alter the picture at all, they make it darker. Thus 30 per cent net loss may be considered a minimum estimate. What is the meaning of such a loss? And how can the estimate be made to fit in with the loud denials that anything even approaching 40 per cent of cargoes going from this country to Britain were being sent to the bottom? The answers to both questions are reasonably simple.

Taking the second question first, the widely quoted figure of 40 per cent cargo losses undoubtedly originated in a misunderstanding of the fact that considerably more than 40 per cent of Britain's total is estimated at only 30 per cent because replacements will be made from several sources. Nor does that imply the sinking of even 30 per cent of every convoy. For even under war conditions the average merchant ship makes four and a half round trips, to and from Britain, in every twelve months. Thus a given ship's chance of being sunk on a given voyage, whether to or from this country or elsewhere, is only one-ninth of the gross loss.

In short the loss of ships is cumulative, and the loss of goods is not. While at the end of the year more than 40 per cent of Britain's ships may have been submerged or bombed only a little more than 5 per cent of the goods sent to Britain will have missed their destination.

LOSS' MEANING What does such a loss mean, is the second question. Although some may find grounds for complacency in the thought that Britain is still getting more than 90 per cent of the war materials now being sent to her, the meaning of the loss is unfortunately the conclusion drawn from Arnold's report. For Britain cannot afford to lose a single ship, grinding attrition, deprived of any means of striking back, if the British people and the British leaders have no hope that by holding on now they will be enabled to strike back later, they cannot be relied on to stay in the fight. And their only hope is to get infinitely more American war materials than they are now receiving.

By July, infinitely larger quantities of war materials will begin to come off the American production lines. By next spring we shall be turning out a really formidable striking power of weapons. Yet Britain's shipping resources are already strained to the limit and beyond, carrying out present output.

It is not difficult to draw an inference from this state of affairs. When more weapons are produced, there must be more ships to carry them. There will be no more ships, if we allow the present rate of loss to continue, and simply seek to meet the temporary situation by drawing on our own shipping resources. That is the worst form of sending good money after bad, as the Maritime Commission officials have repeatedly pointed out at White House conferences. If Britain's ships are protected and our ships are not thrown away, there will be shipping enough next year. If no protection is afforded, there will be too little shipping, and the war will be lost.

The British leaders are only too thoroughly aware of all this. The British people vaguely apprehend it. If the danger at sea is not quickly met by this country, no one can be certain how British morale will hold up under the appalling conditions. The British people are now taking. Therefore two things are clear. The choice between meeting the danger at sea or not meeting it is the choice between winning and losing the war. And the choice cannot be deferred; it must be made very soon.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The Nature Of Humanity. Reading a detective yarn the other day, I'm fond of 'em, especially when the characters are well-drawn and when there's lots of gore, beginning in the first chapter and running through to the last.

Anyway, in this yarn the detective was a guest in a mansion where the murderer had found his victims, noticed that the servants didn't keep the place very clean. It was a bachelor establishment. And, in a friendly letter to his sister, the detective mentioned that, while the surfaces of tables and chairs and so on were apparently dusted regularly, in the hidden places, under the beds and furnishings, the dust was thick. He wrote he was a little surprised, as the Jewish woman who was housekeeper seemed a nice, neat body.

And his sister, in her answer, commented that Jewish women were notable for their impeccable housekeeping. And that was the first clue to the murderer. And the item has sent my mind to wondering what kind of housekeeping is done by the unfortunate Jewish women who are viciously crowded into the ghettos that Nazism has created. You can't be absolutely meticulous when a family has only one room in which to perform all the functions of living. I suppose they do their best, but it must be a rather pitiful sort of best.

And that thought rather naturally led to the slum districts I've seen in London and Liverpool and Manchester and other crowded, poor sections of British cities. I suppose the slums of London were, at one time, the most horrible of all examples of unfit places for human habitation. Yet humanity was packed into them like swarming maggots.

I can remember those slums from when I was a young man in England. Sometimes, for a short cut to some destination, I'd hurry through some near Scotland road, Liverpool, or in some other wretched section of that big city.

Change For The Better. When I went home to visit in 1925, after the war, there was a notable change for the better. Some slums remained, but Liverpool had progressed far along a program of rehousing. Acres of slums had been torn down and the people who had lived there established in neat rows of modern, convenient cottages, in developments that circled the city.

And I noticed that these new homes for the slum dwellers were kept meticulously clean. The doorsteps were white as fresh chalk and the little curtains in the windows were clean and stiff with starch. The tiny pots of earth were gay with flowers, carefully tended by hands that took high pride in them.

And the thought came that here was utter refutation of the silly charge

LESS "POLITICKING" IN FOUR-YEAR TERM

Editor Constitution: The writer has never held a public office that was subject to the vote of the electorate, nor have we ever been a candidate for such an office. But as an observer from the sidelines, both as a newspaper editor and in the semi-official capacity of assistant secretary of the state senate under several governors of Georgia, we cannot but feel that the adoption of the four-year term for Governor and other statehouse officers, as proposed under the constitutional amendments to be voted upon June 3 by the people, would do more toward ending petty "politicking" in Georgia and contribute more towards an efficient, economical administration of our state government than any one step that could be taken by the electorate.

It has been obvious for years, as the number of governmental services increased, to add more and more burdens upon the executive department in properly administering these services. It is only a small mind, a politically imprudent mind, that looks for selfish political motives in every courageous action call to our American patriotism these days. Still I must feel that government is handicapped by lack of real leadership. We seem to have a Gallup Poll government at the end of Massachusetts avenue, where a fear psychosis surely is noticeable. Apprehension of political effects should not be even apparent, but alas, are apparent, or at least seems so to the writer and to many of his well-informed friends.

The most pertinent trenchant sentence of the whole recent time was Mr. Willie's slogan, which he used in his timely, sincere and courageous article in Collier's Magazine—"Americans, stop being afraid!"

What we need is to shake off this cloud of despair and apprehension. Oh! for the clear vision of a leader, a leader who will awake this great sluggard of a giant, America, with almost the fervor of the sweeping religious waves of old, before it is too late! Awake America! Stop being afraid!

Grandma's Day: Why Not? But Lay Off Grandpa

There is a town named Rosewood somewhere in the United States that observes Grandmother's Day, observes the Observer, of Charlotte, N. C. And why not?

As the Observer points out, it is Grandma who holds down the job. She does the cooking when the other folks are busy with bridge, cocktails or public service work. She tends the grandchildren and is content to wear the same black silk dress she has worn for 50 years.

I join this editor in tribute to Grandma. But where does he get that stuff about her sitting at home and doing the laundry?

My vast social circle includes fifty-odd grandmothers and none of them have retired to the rocking chair and the cob pipe. They are usually at a bridge party or a cigarette or suggesting that another martini—with not quite so much vermouth this time—would be good for what ails them.

The Observer goes further and suggests a national observance of Grandfather's Day. I oppose that. By the time a man has become a grandfather he's entitled to be let alone. Which he usually is.

Bootleg in Banks

Editor Jack Hilton, of the Banks County Journal, is somewhat hot and bothered over the liquor situation in his neck of the woods.

He says the only way to stop liquor selling that he knows of is to give it away. Which certainly is a liberal attitude and one likely to be acclaimed by a vast multitude.

Hilton admits that not so many men in Banks county have notches in their noses since repeal. The notches, he explains, came from drinking "caw" out of fruit jars and not from wearing glasses. They drink store-bought bourbon now.

It may be that Banks county is suffering from the drought. Only a few Georgia counties have legalized liquor stores. But that doesn't mean there's no liquor. Keeping dry has restored comparative prosperity to the old-fashioned moonshiner and his cronies.

Visiting around Georgia in the last year or two I have paused overnight in many a county as legally dry as the Sahara. Venturing to commiserate with the hosts—and perhaps drop a hint—I have reflected upon their sad lot. And invariably they have risen to the defense of their home county.

"There are five places within a mile where you can get all you want," they affirm. "Come on, I'll show you."

Only difference seems to be that their look joints pay no local licenses. Except, it is dimly rumored, to the sheriff. And the sheriff seems to demand a lot, because the bootleg price is invariably 25 cents a pint above the official rate.

Mrs. Ethridge's Book

Willie Snow Ethridge has written another book—entitled "I'll Sing One Song," and will be next honor guest in that succession of authors' luncheons given by Helen Parker, of Rich's.

If her book is half as happy as Mrs. Ethridge always seems, it will be refreshing in a troublous time like this.

Willie Snow has always been a marvel to me. A Macon girl now residing in Louisville, she married a hardworking and exceptionally brilliant journalist, Mark Ethridge, and it must be oppressive to live with, love honor and obey as strongminded a man as Mark, who is now a big shot on the Courier-Journal. Besides that she has raised a couple of youngsters—if my count is correct—and has found time to write several books. And has a lot of fun out of life.

When we danced the Big Apple together in the main street of Swainsboro a few summers ago she had me whipped down, as the fellow says.

Speaking of Georgia authors, what ever became of Caroline Miller, of Baxley, who wrote that very fine "Lamb in His Bosom"? Did she have just one book in her system?

Maybe it's better to do one good one and quit than to grind out a "quickie" to sell on the author's reputation.

Dead in Traffic

Rolling into town on Peachtree road a few mornings ago I found traffic slightly blocked. Big truck had a busted axle, right in the middle of things. It couldn't have been pulled over to the curb. The driver was waiting for a wrecker.

It got me started to thinking how seldom nowadays one sees a broken-down car in midtown.

Oldtimers can remember when cars gave up the ghost and quit right on the car tracks. And everybody had to push. I recall, with a hot sensation behind my ears, how my first car laid down on me on that grade at Forsyth and Carnegie in the middle of the rush hour and required two cops and the assembled multitude to get it out of the way of civilization.

It's been a long time since I've seen a car go dead and block everything. Oh yes, every now

Quick Relief from Pile Irritation

30 years ago a Buffalo druggist created an ointment for relief from the itching and smarting of Piles. It brought such quick cooling, soothing, astringent relief that its fame spread throughout the country, and made Peterson's Ointment a favorite in thousands of homes. Ask your druggist for a 35c box of Peterson's Ointment today, or 60c tube with applicator. Money back if you are not delighted with the relief. (adv.)

HONOR—Samuel Dobbs Howard, grandson and namesake of Samuel Candler Dobbs, accepts a scroll paying tribute to his grandfather and making the latter an honorary life member of the Atlanta Advertising Club from Chess Lagomarsino, president of the club, at the luncheon meeting yesterday.

Good Morning I. C. C. Action On Georgia's Time Delayed

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

With four of her ancient landmarks destroyed—Big Ben, symbol of Time; the House of Commons, symbol of the Rights of the People; Westminster, symbol of Faith; and the British Museum, symbol of Culture—with these ancient landmarks blasted by Nazi bombs, England goes marching on, her spirit undimmed.

And one reason why England can stand up in the face of such suffering—the explanation of her ability to take it—may be found, at least partially, in the fact that Englishmen have a sense of humor, albeit we sometimes delight to poke fun at their difficulty in getting the point of a joke.

The magazine, Punch, is a good example of their sense of humor. This is the centennial year of Punch, and they are making quite a to do over the celebration of this centennial, and properly so. It was in July, 1841, that the first issue of Punch was published, with contributions by Mark Lemon, Henry Mayhew, Henry Grattan, Joseph Allen, F. G. Tomlins, Gilbert A. Beckett and W. H. Williams.

On its cover was a drawing by A. S. Henning depicting a crowd around a puppet booth, on the stage of which were seated a marionette, Punch, and his partner, Judy.

This guffawgraph is intended to form a refuge for destitute wit—an asylum for the thousands of orphan jokes—the superannuated Joe Millers—the millions of perishing puns, which are now wandering about without so much as a ticket to rest upon, ran the foreword.

How they got the name for the magazine is quite interesting. The best authenticated record states that at a meeting during which the various contributors, including Mark Lemon, were discussing the policy of the paper-to-be, someone remarked that it should be like a good mixture of punch, being nothing without Lemon. Hilariously, the assembled group hailed the pun and adopted the title.

"Two things above all have made Punch the institution it is," writes a leading British editor. "First, its jokes have only rarely been mere bon-mots. The only representative Punch jest, then as now, was a jest of character or a jest born of a certain philosophic attitude towards life. Second, the refusal of Punch to be satisfied with laughter alone. Had it been merely a comic journal, it certainly would not have lived to be a centenarian."

Thackeray was one of the contributors to Punch, as was Shirley Brooks, F. C. Burnand, H. J. Byron, W. S. Gilbert, and William Brough. Today the contributors include such illustrious names as E. V. Rieu, C. L. Graves and Sir Owen Seaman.

Punch has always risen to its highest achievements during times of crisis. For that reason, Americans will do well to read Punch during 1941.

Advertising Club Honors Samuel Dobbs

Atlanta in Hospital Is Given Scroll, Life Membership.

Samuel Candler Dobbs, prominent Atlantian, was honored by the Atlanta Advertising Club yesterday at a broadcast program of the luncheon meeting and was presented a scroll recording his services, which was received by his grandson, Samuel Dobbs Howard. Dobbs has been confined to Emory hospital for several months. The program was broadcast over WGST, honoring the past president of the Association of Advertising Clubs of the World, Chess Lagomarsino, president of the Atlanta organization, presented the scroll, which was later taken to the hospital with a rebroadcast of the program, by the officers of the club. Principal speaker was Russell Varney, director of public relations of Standard Brands.

A duplicate of the transcription will be heard at the smoker and reunion of the Old Guard of the Advertising Federation of America convention, to be held in Boston next week, marking the 30th anniversary of the "Truth in Advertising" credo.

Dobbs is credited with founding the "Truth in Advertising" movement when he made his acceptance speech as president of the Association of Advertising Clubs of the World (now the AFA) in Louisville in 1909. Members of the family attending the luncheon included Mrs. Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Bird, his son-in-law and daughter, and S. C. Dobbs Jr., of New York. Fellow charter members of the Atlanta Rotary Club also were honor guests.

Text of Scroll. The scroll bears the following inscription: "Whereas, Samuel Candler Dobbs has for a half century been a constructive force in the field of advertising and of marketing, and

"Whereas, it was his leadership which established among us that great credo, 'Truth in Advertising,' and

"Whereas, we of advertising regard him as one of us, though he has long since left this field—and feeling thus because his contributions to advertising will never cease to bear fruit,

"Therefore, be it resolved, that we extend to Samuel Candler Dobbs the gratitude of the Atlanta Advertising Club and extend to him a life honorary membership in our organization."

Star Pairings Billed on Movie Front Here

Directors, Actors Team Up to Provide High Entertainment.

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Combinations of directors and stars, as will be presented in motion pictures opening runs in Atlanta today and tomorrow, indicate a safe prediction for good film entertainment even before they are reviewed.

Outstanding combine on the film horizon is the teaming of Director Frank Capra and Star Gary Cooper in "Meet Joe Doe," which will open today at the Fox theater. This movie, produced for the most part behind closed doors by the Capra genius, also offers the actors' combination of Gary and Walter Brennan, old friends who delight in building up situations for each other.

When it comes to comedy-romance, there is not a team in Hollywood to surpass the genius of William Powell and Myrna Loy, when they have a good story and are interested in their work. Manager Eddie Penecost, of Loew's, where the film will play, promises me the picture has both, going farther in calling it "the best comedy made." Jack Carson, who has been rising in the role of the third man since he attempted to take Ginger Rogers away from Ronald Colman in a film last summer, is third man in this comedy, too.

Columbia is attempting a new romantic team, which should be pleasing news to fans tired of seeing George Brent always making love to Bette Davis in tragic films. George has the male lead in a modern story, "They Dare Not Love," which has Martha Scott, an outstanding heavy actress, in the light feminine lead.

through Saturday with "Wings of the Navy."

Fox

Frank Capra's first offering under the Warner Brothers' banner reaches the Fox screen today with Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck and Walter Brennan in leading roles.

The film has been produced on lavish scale and was a year in the making. Its story concerns the taking of a bum and making him a candidate for high political office. His campaign is run by a girl reporter and things go fine until the guy, in love with the girl, discovers she is using his candidacy merely as a means of getting another story.

Filmed under lock and key, no one saw the finished product until it was ready for market. It is supposed to be a screwy comedy with good acting.

Paramount

"The Great American Broadcast," the movies' historical version of how the radio networks got started, is now at the Paramount theater for a holiday run after a week's engagement at the Fox theater.

In the cast are Jack Oakie, Alice Faye and John Payne. Included in the film are pictures of the Willard-Dempsey championship fight, which was broadcast by a form of radio network.

It's romance is between Faye and Payne who have great difficulty in staying together after having no trouble getting married, but in the end they find each other on a coast-to-coast broadcast.

Rialto

Today, at the Rialto theater, marks the opening of a week's run of one of the strangest romances ever put upon the screen. It is "They Dare Not Love," co-starring Martha Scott and George Brent, and it brings these two favorites in one of the most powerful stories they have ever had.

James Edward Grant wrote the story and the noted James Whale directed for the producers, Columbia Pictures Corporation. The story deals with refugees from war-torn Austria, a former prince and the girl he can't help loving, who come to America seeking sanctuary. It provides a fascinating insight into the problems faced by refugees from the Nazi-occupied countries and shows how, because of the activities of Hitler agents here, they dare not live normal lives as average American men and women do.

It is only when all hope seems lost and they face what appears to be certainty of perpetual separation, that they dare give rein to the passionate love they feel for each other.

In addition to Miss Scott and Brent, there is a hand-picked cast which includes Paul Lukas, Roman Bohnen, Kay Linaker and others.

Capitol theater for a week's engagement starting Sunday, as well as encouragement from the Ministry of Information.

The actual convoy trips were made by the director, cameramen and script-writer to get authentic background scenes. They were undertaken at great personal risk, the chief cameraman having to remain on board one of the ships which, after completing its convoy duties, was sent to the Norwegian coast in case of reprisals following the Altmarch incident.

Although the subject is faithfully presented, it is not in any sense a documentary film but primarily a rattling good tale of adventure enacted by a strong cast headed by Clive Brook, who will be well remembered for the many fine films he has made in this country.

Today and through Saturday, the Capitol has "Wings of the Navy," starring George Brent, Olivia de Havilland and others.

Loew's

A sure-fire movie remedy for the blues ever since their first Mr. and Mrs. Thin Man characterizations, William Powell and Myrna Loy make their latest bid for belly-laughs in "Love Crazy," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which opens tomorrow at Loew's.

Naturally, Powell and Miss Loy are Mr. and Missus again in the new film. And again, they have their marital difficulties, this time based on violent mutual jealousy. It appears that Myrna wants a divorce, which Bill refuses to grant. In order to forestall the final decree, Powell uses many stratagems. Among other things, he shaves off his mustache and becomes a female impersonator, which is an unusual departure for an actor whose upper-lip growth is virtually his trade-mark. These scenes are reported to be funnier than anything Powell has ever done, including the scoutmaster sequence in "I Love You Again."

As befits one of 1941's most important comedies, "Love Crazy" has two romantic triangles. The other man is played by muscular Jack Carson, who enacts a champion archer. The other woman is played by Gail Patrick.

Paul Burton And Orchestra To Open Here

Rainbow Roof To Feature Danceable Strains of Network Star.

Paul Burton and his orchestra open Saturday in the Rainbow Roof of the Ansley hotel.

Burton and his orchestra feature music which is sweet, soothing and danceable. It has instrumental and vocal specialties and has established itself as a favorite of the radio networks from WTAM over the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company. The distinctive sweet music and inimitable arrangements will make the song "So Many Memories" (the band's theme song) one that will be hummed by the listeners to the band for weeks to come.

Paul Burton is a presentable and talented young violinist who will capture the hearts of his patrons not only by his brilliant playing but by his winning personality. Dark, handsome, and with a smile, he makes friends easily and listeners leave engagements with pleasant memories.

Camera Fools One John Doe, But He Wins $5

Constitution Picture Series Continues as Movie Opens.

C. O. Weems, of 28 Delta place, was the only one of the two "John Does" and the two "Jane Does" pictured in yesterday's paper who wasn't aware, after the flash bulb went off, that he would receive $5.

He went to work yesterday morning and found out about the "Meet John Doe" series.

"I wasn't even conscious of the fact that the candid cameraman 'shot' me," he said.

Miss Betty Green, of 651 Holderness street, S. W., Miss Kathryn Carter, of 1225 Springdale road, and Jo Taylor, of 339 Luckie street, were also picture in Atlanta's "Meet John Doe" series and were awarded $5.

"Meet John Doe" opens for a week's engagement at the Fox theater today. Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck and Edward Arnold will perform in one of the most exciting movies of the year.

And in the meantime, Atlanta's John and Jane Does will be photographed between 8:10 and 9:10 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night when buying their papers to take home. Watch for the candid cameraman, and watch The Constitution. Each person whose picture appears will receive $5 on identification of his photo the day the picture runs.

Screwworm Infestation Reported in Georgia

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., May 21.—Reports to the Agricultural Extension service indicate that screwworm infestation is beginning earlier than usual in Georgia and that infestations are being reported farther north in the state than in any previous year.

R. E. Davis, extension beef cattle and sheep specialist, points out that farmers would do well to use caution as a means of beginning treatment before the worms get started to any great extent.

"Early treatment of livestock wounds, whether infested or not, should be made with diphenylamine," the extension livestock specialist said. "If animals are infested with screwworms, benzol should be applied first to kill the worms."

Dentists End 'Cannot Wait' State Session For Invasion, In Savannah Hillman Says

Two Atlanta Citizens Given Honorary Memberships.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 21.—(P)—

The convention of the Georgia Dental Association and auxiliary organizations, which attracted nearly 500 delegates here, was concluded today. The association selected Savannah as the site for its 1942 session.

This is the first time in many years the dentists have voted two consecutive conventions for the same city. Augusta had issued an invitation and Macon had it under consideration. Both withdrew after discussions.

Another unusual occurrence, which broke all precedent, was the election of two laymen to honorary membership. So honored were Robert F. Maddox, of Atlanta, chairman of the state board of health, and Cator Woolford, Georgia philanthropist who has made many noteworthy contributions to dental health education.

Dr. C. A. Yarbrough, of Macon, on being installed president by Dr. Semon Eisenberg, of Savannah, outgoing leader, spoke of world conditions and pledged support of the dentists in the world emergency.

Ryan Warns U. S. Of Axis Air Moves

WASHINGTON, May 21.—(P)—

Oswald Ryan, member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, tonight described Axis penetration in South American aviation as a "Trojan horse" with "wings that are dangerous to our national life."

"So long as Axis planes, camouflaged as commercial airliners, are taking off from Axis-subsidized airports and flying daily over the airways of South America, sometimes within bombing range of the Panama canal and our vital defense bases, neither our safety nor that of the other 20 American republics can be regarded as secure," he said.

"There is but one answer to the challenge. The Axis must be eliminated from the aviation of this hemisphere; the aviation of all the Americas must be made truly American."

New York Pictured as 'Second London' If Attacked.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(P)—

Sidney Hillman, appealing for increased aid to Great Britain, warned tonight that New York might "become a second London."

"We cannot wait until our whole seaboard becomes a line of flaming cities," said the associate defense director in an address prepared for the National Industrial Conference Board.

"We dare not run the risk of being left alone in a hostile world to face a showdown struggle between two ways of life."

"The battle of Britain is ours. The conflict between democracy and totalitarianism is ours."

"We should not wait for bombings before we do what Great Britain has had to do."

Hillman said that the present defense program involved the expenditure of $42,000,000,000, but that "further and vaster sums will probably have to be expended, because our efforts will be determined not by ourselves but by the totalitarian powers."

Philip D. Reed, chairman of the General Electric Company, and senior consultant of the Federal priorities division, predicted a struggle with totalitarianism lasting "five, perhaps more, years during which prime emphasis will be placed on the production of military products and devices."

Reed urged manufacturers to adjust themselves to a long period of enormous production for defense "and a consequent shortage, rationing and allocation of strategic materials."

Other speakers listed were Colonel William J. Donovan, presidential representative in Europe recently, and Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, a private research organization.

Reed told the industrialists the sooner necessity for the adjustment to defense production was faced, the sooner would the problem of production and distribution for civilian needs, alongside an all-out defense effort, be met.

"If you accept, as I do," he said, "the conclusion that whatever happens in Europe and the Far East in 1941, we have entered a long period of large-scale armament production and that the manufacture of numerous peacetime products will be subject to serious restrictions, it follows that many manufacturers now engaged in making civilian products will do well to consider their situations and explore the possibility of converting part or all of their operations to defense manufactures."

As to post-war conditions and problems, Reed said he anticipated: (1) A speedup of the 20th-century trend toward economic integration—an industry-wide planning under government supervision; (2) collective bargaining between nation-wide labor organizations and industry-wide associations of employers; (3) greater centralized control of money and credit; (4) government spending for previously planned public works, "in order to cushion the devastating effect of an almost vertically declining demand for armaments, and (5) 'a deep determination to take whatever steps are necessary, however drastic, to avoid a recurrence of mass unemployment.'"

Jordan commented in a prepared address that Americans "sense that they stand in the same profound peril as the people of the French republic two years ago, and the people of the British Empire today."

"The people of Britain may soon be beaten or absorbed into submission and their empire broken," he said.

Eastern School To Be Rebuilt At Red Oak

Dr. Agee To Officiate at Cornerstone Ceremonies Saturday.

The cornerstone of the new Eastern School building at Red Oak, which replaces the $55,000 structure destroyed by fire last January, will be laid in ceremonies at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Dr. M. Preston Agee, of Augusta, grand master of Georgia Masons, will officiate. He will be assisted by the College Park Masonic Lodge No. 45. The Parent-Teacher Association will serve a luncheon on the grounds at 1 o'clock.

County Superintendent Jere Wells said yesterday that the former building, which was only five years old at the time of the fire, was completely destroyed along with all equipment.

The new building is being erected from insurance benefits, and will duplicate the former structure with added improvements. It will contain 10 classrooms, an auditorium and a cafeteria.

17 New School Projects Approved

Construction of 17 new schools and improvement on several others in Georgia were approved by the WPA in the 60-day period ending

May 15, it was disclosed yesterday by Harry E. Harman Jr., state WPA administrator.

Work on most of the projects has started, Harman said, and all will be under construction in a short time. The projects take in every section of the state.

The newly approved school projects call for expenditure of a total of $334,849 by the WPA, and a slightly larger sum by the sponsors, for a total expenditure of $800,000.

Film Interest? Wayne Morris! Says Atlanta's 'Pat' Stewart

Sister of Movie Starlet
Is Reported Engaged.

Former Atlanta Subdeb Patricia Stewart has at last found a real interest in the movies—Wayne Morris.

They're engaged, according to reports received here from Hollywood and verified in Atlanta yesterday.

Morris' divorce from Leonora (Bubbles) Schinas, tobacco heiress, will become final in September, Associated Press dispatches said.

Pretty "Pat," 18-year-old sister of Peggy Stewart, one of movie-dom's rising starlets, told friends in Atlanta whom she visited in 1939 after a few months' stay in Hollywood that she had not the slightest interest in the movies. In fact, she said she had turned down an offer to act.

By the time the year was over, she was dreaming vaguely of a career as scenario writer and now—

It's really no dream, from all indications. Several of her former schoolmates at E. Livers school have learned through Pat's letters that she has had several dates with the popular star of such hits as "Brother Rat," "Kid Galahad" and "Valley of the Giants."

Patricia, once reported as Jackie Cooper's heart throb, was formerly well known among Atlanta's younger set. She lived here with her mother and her sister, Peggy, for about six years.

"PAT" STEWART
"Happiness Ahead."

Though she's never had any acting ambitions, Patricia has already exerted "influence" on Hollywood. Many of those appropriate southern mannerisms which Vivien Leigh exhibited as Scarlett in you-know-which-picture, may have come from Pat.

Before the epochal story was filmed, Pat had a job as Miss Leigh's social secretary, being engaged by David O. Selznick to teach the English actress the ways of the south.

This Pat did by accompanying Miss Leigh wherever she went off the set—on shopping tours, out riding, and while eating.

Wife Should Stick By Husband

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:
I am 30 and have been married for 13 years. From the beginning it has been a mistake. My husband comes from a fine family, is a good provider and is generous to his family.
But he is one of those men who drinks. These drinks come about once a month, and things are pretty rough.
We have two fine boys for whom I think no sacrifice would be too great to give them a chance so that their lives would not be like their father's. Besides, I have gone too far now to turn back, and I am afraid it is too late to think he will change.

This is my problem: My husband is in construction work. My oldest boy enters junior high next year. Construction work moves us around a lot. He wants me to take the boys and live in my home town so that they can have a better chance in school. A lot of my friends, and his family do not agree, since they say he does better when we are with him. If I go back home, the boys are going to learn a lot about their dad's past. I am wondering what effect it will have on them. From the children's outlook what, in your opinion, would be the best thing for me to do?

DISTURBED.
Dear Dixie:
I think if I were you, I would go with my husband, take the boys along, and keep the home together. A good point against your husband's argument that he wants the boys educated is the fact that there are good schools all over the state, and not just in your home town, so that reason he presents to you is rather weak.
The situation, however, can be considered from a number of angles. If you leave your husband and return to your home town, you will be breaking up your family and denying your boys the balanced life which can only be given them by a mother, a father and a home. I think your sons are less likely to be influenced by their father's habits if they see them and the results with their own eyes, rather than remember him by a bad reputation and gossip. For the sake of your children, my advice to you would be to stay with your husband. A drinking man is bad business, I know, but there is one thing in his favor and that is that he only has these spells and is not a habitual drunkard. You will have to stay with him for the sake of your children. The life you plan and make for the boys may make him strive to be better and more temperate. Go on with your husband. If you return home, he will go his way and it will be the beginning of a divorce, and an unsettled life for not only you but also your sons. For their sake, stick with your husband.

Salad Oils and Coffee Cream Are Important Diet 'Don'ts'

By Ida Jean Kain.

We once heard of a lady who had a million dollars and still couldn't have cream in her coffee. She had to count her calories just like the rest of us and clip them along with her coupons, if she expected to keep her figure.

Cream is one of the fats and fats are so high in calories that they are on the black list for anyone with the disinclination to gravitate into the unattractive stout class. In warm weather, with the menus running to sandwiches made with mayonnaise, salads mixed with French dressing, and tall, cool beverages, frozen desserts and berries all enriched with cream, it is a list that bears watching.

Suppose you take just a sandwich and salad for lunch. Plain, they are slimming fare, but not when 300 or so calories in dressing are added. Then, there are the nice cool beverages. The 18 percent cream that goes into them counts only 30 calories per tablespoon, but why take just one? Same with sugar. It isn't the first lump for 25 calories that counts, it's the second for 50.

For the moment, such iced drinks may cool you off. But it's only a fleeting illusion, for actually they are high in calories—high in fuel—and you either burn it in energy or wear it as a coat of fat.

Proof that you can get used to going without these delectable trimmings is furnished by the reducers who develop a preference for black coffee. They like the taste of the coffee. While you are about it, you might as well extend this rule of no cream or sugar to summer fruits and berries and surprise yourself with their natural flavor.

It is a good plan to use as little fat as possible in the preparation of food. Frying fat counts 100 calories per tablespoon and meats and vegetables absorb untold calories in the process of cooking by this method. If you have any regard for your figure, make it a rule to bake, broil or boil all foods. Gravy is another thing that can be very well left out. It is essentially fat—and you get almost as many calories in one scant helping as in half a cup of mashed potatoes.

Save your fat calories for the butter that goes on baked potatoes and corn on the cob and on your breakfast toast. You don't miss the fat you can't see nearly as much.

If you want to cut down on your calories, send stamped return envelope for Ida Jean Kain's "Complete Calorie Chart"—then you can check the foods that supply too many of these fuel units. Mail request to Miss Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

MY DAY: We Must Be Liberal To U. S. Foreigners

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

PORTLAND, Maine, Tuesday.—Yesterday afternoon the cabinet ladies received with me at a small garden party for the wives of the members of the house of representatives, and the women members themselves. This is always a very pleasant party and I was delighted to have such a good day.

Then, for a few minutes, I went to the opening of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, which the Women's National Democratic Club is helping to finance as a defense project. It will serve, we hope, as a place of recreation and relaxation for the men in our services who come to this city.

We succeeded, somewhat breathlessly, in catching our plane for New York City, and still somewhat breathlessly, we caught the train for Portland, Maine. Here we had a leisurely breakfast and are shortly starting for Augusta, Maine, by motor, where we are to have the pleasure of luncheon with the Governor and Mrs. Sewall.

There is one subject which is troubling me increasingly and which I feel I must talk over with you. It is perfectly natural that we should be extremely anxious now to keep foreign agents from retarding our defense industries, or from creating dissension among us through their activities. We must find aliens who are here illegally and, in so doing, we must question many people who are entirely innocent of any subversive activity. For that reason I feel that only the highest caliber men, employed by the legally constituted government authorities, should have anything to do with these activities. For the rest, it seems to me if we know anything really suspicious, we have an obligation to report it to the proper government authorities. Our country, however, is made up of people, many of whom have come here recently, but who are either in process of becoming citizens, or who may be citizens already, though of foreign birth or parentage.

They are probably more devoted to the democratic form of government than many of our citizens who have taken their allegiance to democracy for granted. These people must be encouraged to trust and to love their new country and their neighbors. They must be given the same opportunity that the rest of us have to earn a living and to lead their own lives protected by the laws of our land.

I am deeply troubled by certain things that have come to me. For instance, in industries, some people, because their names are Italian or German, or because they or their parents are known to have been born in those countries, are refused employment.

We in this country are opposing totalitarian government. We do not like Nazi or Fascist regimes. But we are not opposing the refugees who want to help us make our country safe, nor citizens who have come to us from other lands and who are loyal and good Americans. This demands from us a refusal to be hysterical and an ability to use our powers of observation, but to use them wisely.

Deficient Diet Causes Pellagra

By Dr. William Brady.

Insufficient intake of nicotinic acid, one of the entities or components of natural vitamin B complex, is now recognized as the chief cause of pellagra, and not shortage of vitamin G (vitamin B2, riboflavin), as earlier investigators inferred. Cure and prevention of pellagra is effected by correcting the diet, seeing to it that an adequate amount of food containing vitamin B complex (nicotinic acid particularly) is included in the daily diet; or by supplementing the ordinary diet with a concentrate of vitamin B complex or with nicotinic acid alone.

A careful survey of two communities in the hills of southeastern Kentucky was made by Drs. Kooser and Hayden and Blankenhorn, of Cincinnati, in respect to the prevalence of pellagra and the state of nutrition.

One community is rural, and farming is the chief occupation; the other is a coal mining community.

In the farming community no patient with pellagra could be found, but Dr. Kooser has seen four cases during his eight years of practice there. In the mining camp community at least 13 cases of pellagra are under treatment at present.

Twice as many families in the farming community have gardens as families in the mining community—albeit the mining community families raise some corn, potatoes, beans, keep some chickens, hogs, sometimes even a cow. The tendency is for the urban or camp or village dwellers, who are employed chiefly in the mining industry when the mines are being worked, to rely on ready-to-eat food purchased in the stores. They use a good deal of canned milk, for example, whereas the rural families, farming, tend to use fresh milk. Mining families eat some eggs, some fresh lean pork, some fresh vegetables when the mines are busy and pay is fairly steady. The rural farming families usually keep chickens and a cow or several cows, a few pigs, and so they fare better in these corrective foods—eggs, fresh milk, fresh lean pork. Then they get considerable B complex from the fresh garden truck they raise on their own land, especially peas, beans, greens.

Summer Calls for Trim Figures

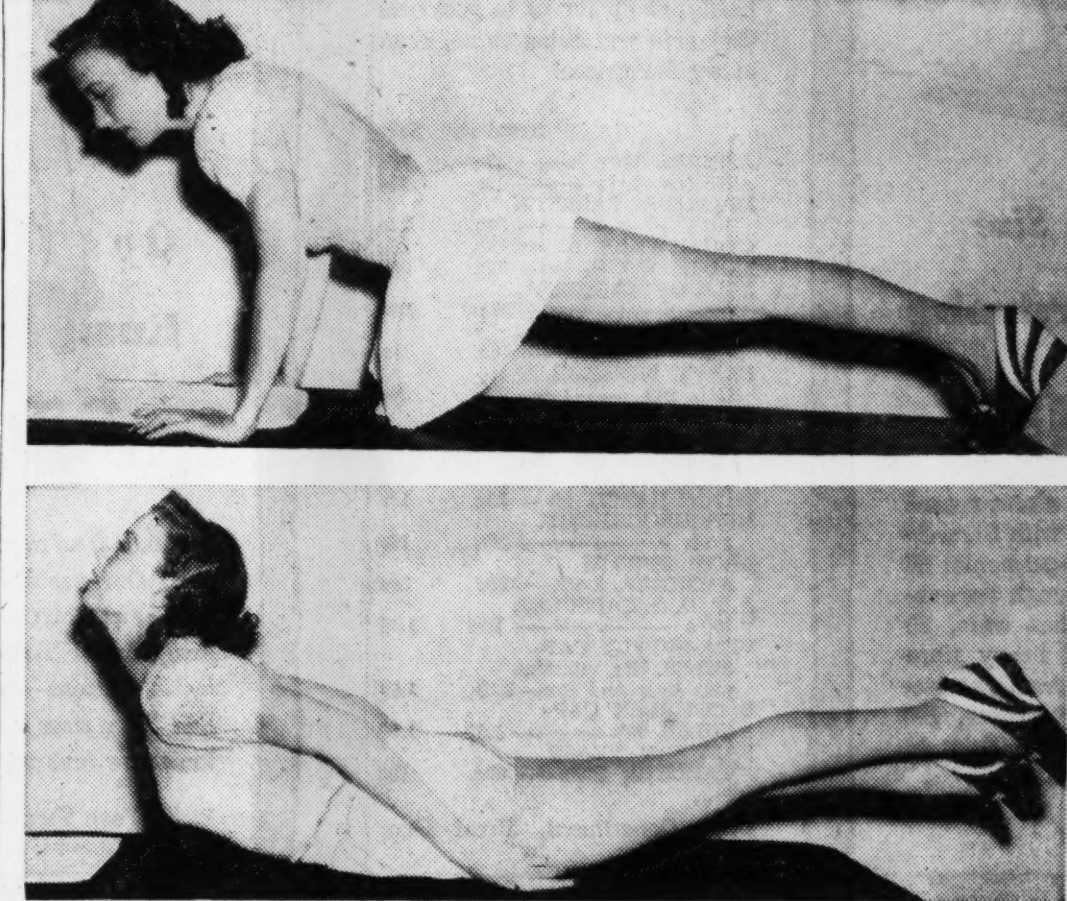

Summer clothes, bathing suits, play suits show up figure faults which winter suits and coats partially concealed. Get into the habit of a regular exercise routine and you'll find those ugly bulges disappearing. Here are some exercises which work on particular spots. Renee Haal, RKO Radio starlet, poses for them.

On the left: For slimming the waistline, Renee Haal clasps her hands behind head, sways body, bending at waist, from far left to far right. She keeps her shoulder blades pressed together and knees straight.

Top, below: For tightening stomach muscles, strengthening wrist and shoulder muscles, Renee lies flat on her back, places hands close to body, halfway between hips and shoulders, then slowly raises body full length of arms. Note she keeps her knees straight.

Bottom, below: This exercise conditions chest and back muscles, keeping waistline thin. She lies flat on stomach, places hands at sides, bends upward from the waist, and at the same time lifts her legs, keeping knees straight at all times.

Below, right: A good exercise for general refashioning of the hips, thighs and bust is to lie on the back, supporting hips with hands and going through a fast bicycle-pedaling motion.

Stars Disagree on Marriage Views

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—"A happy marriage is practically impossible," says George Brent.

"I never knew I could be so happy until I married Alan (Curtis)," says Ilona Massey.

Brent and the Hungarian actress are co-starring in "International Lady," and here you have two points of view working side by side. We get into the marriage subject when I ask George to account for the ever-persisting rumor that he and Ann Sheridan are married. The reply he gives would indicate that not only are they not married, but the romance has cooled.

"I will never marry again," George says. "What's the use? The chances of success are too remote. How can two people live together day after day in the same house and not get on each other's nerves? No house is big enough. And to contain two people when they are bored or irritated by each other, and the longer they know each other, the more bored and irritated they are likely to become. No," concludes Mr. Brent, "people should wait until they are quite old, and if they want a companion for declining years, then get married."

This conversation is depressing, so I leave George for Miss Massey, whose gaiety is a welcome relief. "Life is so wonderful," coos Ilona. "I didn't think I could ever be so lucky and happy. Particularly after the bad, lonely time I had at Metro when they didn't take up my option. Then I met Alan. D'ye know him? Oh, he's so nice and so shy. You know, he actually blushes. It's wonderful."

There is only one cloud on Miss Massey's horizon of bliss. "I can't be an American citizen until I get on the Hungarian quota. I may have to wait another four years. When I came here on a working permit three and a half years ago, the Hungarian quota was full up for the next seven years. And this means that if I leave the country, I can't get back in. Which is why we had to cancel my South American singing tour. We were so disappointed because it was to have been our honeymoon."

Merle Oberon follows the prevailing vogue and starts her picture—"Illusions"—as an old lady of 60, working backward and stopping short at 10. There are four men in her life—but she is a spinster all the way through the movie. The story describes how she almost, but didn't marry them. Merle's most important beau is Joseph Cotten, who is now in great Hollywood demand. "I played the husband (Cary Grant) role in 'Philadelphia Story' on the stage for two solid years," he tells me. Katharine Hepburn wanted him to repeat in the Metro film version (to which they both refer as "our No. 2 company"). But a none-too-bright executive said, "He is not movie material." I hope he saw Cotten in "Citizen Kane."

Weaving Your Own Rugs Is Easy Fun

A lovely Colonial rug to add a bit of old-fashioned charm to your room! You can easily weave it yourself from cast-off garments—and you'll feel very clever, finding such a delightful use for odds and ends!

Your loom is a simple frame of four strips of wood fastened together. Beginning 1 1/2 inches from the left side, drive 44 nails 1-2 inch apart into the top strip. Repeat on the bottom strip. Now wind twine back and forth from bottom to top nails to form a warp, but wind so there'll be three threads on the first and last nails.

Your weaving is a simple over-and-under process. First weave two inches of filler (rag removed later to leave ends of warp fringed) and weave eight rows of twine for "heading."

Now for the body of the rug. Cut your fabric in strips 2 inches wide and fold raw edges in. You can make lovely hooked and crocheted rugs, too! Complete instructions are given in our 40-page booklet, New Ideas for Handmade Rugs. Includes easy-to-make braided and tufted types, also Oriental pile, French knot.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, NEW IDEAS FOR HANDMADE RUGS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Panel Front Emphasizes Soft Waist

By Lillian Mae.

Pattern 4774.

There's a slim-as-an-arrow look about this soft frock that will make you confident of your attractive appearance wherever you wear it. It's Pattern 4774, and easy to make with the Sewing Instructor for guidance. The most flattering feature of the whole style is that tapering panel that goes up at the front, forming a point just below the graceful, new low neckline. The shirring that is held in place by the top of the panel gives all the softness you need through the bust-line, and they've gathered just below the curved shoulder yokes, too. The back of the dress is made simply, with one smart panel down the skirt. You will like this style in all one fabric—say a cool-looking print—or else with the top and sleeves in gay contrast.

Pattern 4774 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 1/4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Gifted Pianists To Present Program at Edwards Home

By SALLY FORTH.

♦ ♦ ♦ IT WON'T BE just an ordinary pupils' recital when Lillie Peoples Fairlie and Eugenia Snow appear in a piano program Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Edwards. Not ordinary, because their teacher who presents them is Mrs. H. Wayne Wilson, dean of educators in music in Atlanta, and personage extraordinary.

Lillie Peoples (Mrs. Andrew) Fairlie, first as a girl, studied with Mrs. Wilson, and recently resumed her work which had been interrupted by marriage and children. The children are now no longer young enough to require all her attention, and she again turns to her music.

"I thought," Mrs. Fairlie was heard to say not long ago, "that when I took up my lessons again with Mrs. Wilson they would be a pleasant sort of review of what I had once learned. But no such thing. The mind of my teacher, even though her years are more than four score, is directed, and turns her pupils' minds not to the past, but to the moment, in ideas, method, technique. Consequently, my studies are proving a live and stimulating experience. Mrs. Wilson, never content to stand still, in spite of a culture long ago founded on the best this country and Europe had to give, has gone right on to add to her own store of knowledge and distinguished contacts, and to share with her pupils a continuing fresh inspiration."

Mrs. Fairlie's revelation will be scarcely a surprise to Atlanta's musical world, which looks on Mrs. Wilson as its most shining light, and goes on expecting her to put forward year after year and start on their careers interesting young musicians such as Eugenia Snow is proving to be.

Whenever there are concerts, slip a bright English coin in the pocket of each garment, thereby causing a thrill that is all too infrequent in the war-torn country.

Atlantans who are willing to donate coins to this worthy cause may either call or visit the British War Relief headquarters on Peachtree street.

♦ ♦ ♦ AMONG the most cherished wedding gifts lovely Anne Rogers Walker and her fiancé, Blake Newton Jr., of Richmond, Va., have received is a beautiful antique silver spoon. Anne and Blake were presented the handsome heirloom by its former owner, Blake's mother, Mrs. Blake Tyler Newton. Sentiment is attached to the spoon, for it belonged first to Blake's grandmother, the late Mrs. Blake Tyler Newton, who passed it on to her son's fiancée before their wedding. The maiden initials of the Newton bride are engraved in a circle on the handle of the spoon.

Anne and Blake have also received a silver soup ladle, the bowl of which is in the shape of a calla lily. The ladle belonged to Anne's maternal grandmother, for whom she is named, the late Mrs. Anne Benedict, of Athens.

Though Anne and Blake will not be honored at a reception after their wedding on May 31 at St. Luke's church, Mrs. Richard Johnston will compliment the bridal couple and the out-of-town guests at a breakfast on that day. The affair will be held at her West Wesley road residence.

♦ ♦ ♦ MRS. KATE ROBINETT, affectionately known as "Grandmother Robinett," will celebrate her 83rd birthday tomorrow at a luncheon to be given in her honor by her bridge club. Members of the hostess organization are Mesdames Ernest Brown, Rufus Brown, Frank Mitchell, Ed Ainslie and Douglas Coleman.

Mrs. Robinett is noted for her remarkable energy and her keen interest in everything that goes on. She loves baseball games, and picture shows, and when the Kentucky Derby is run annually at Churchill Downs she

Miss Dottie Groome, who was crowned queen of the beautiful May Day pageant at Washington Seminary, which was held yesterday afternoon and Tuesday, is pictured with her maid of honor and court posed in the lovely patio of the school. From left to right, the maids include Misses Anne Anderson, Anne Ecken, Sara Beavers, Betty Garges, the maid of honor; Dottie Groome, the queen; Carolyn Howell, Mia Hecht and Virginia Nelson. The pageant, entitled "School Days," was held in the May Day dell at the school and was directed by Miss Mary Fort Ligon. Presented by members of the physical education department, with the entire student body taking part, the pageant represented the various school activities and classes interpreted through the dance.

Georgia Women Take Part In Golden Jubilee Pageant

By BESSIE SHAW STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 21.—The achievements of General Federation of Women's Clubs were depicted in the pageant presented this evening in the auditorium under the caption of "The Long Path." The story was told in episodes and harked back to 50 years ago and brought the audience up to the golden guard of the future which is invested in junior clubwomen. The prologue was given by Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the national body, assisted by juniors attending the 50th convention here. Georgia's part on the program was in the episode dealing with "Valiant Women of War Days."

Wearing colorful costumes and taking part in this feature were Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, president of the Georgia Federation; Mrs. Leonard Booth, Mrs. John F. MacDougald, Mrs. J. H. Jolley, Mrs. L. S. Moody, Mrs. J. J. Clyde directed the episode which was one of the most interesting on the program.

Ninety-four-year old Mrs. Emma A. Fox, of Detroit, Mich., parliamentarian for the national body, who for 64 years has held club membership, was decreed winner of classification for the longest term of service. Dr. Clara A. Burdette, of Pasadena, Cal., noted educator and former general federation vice president, was declared an outstanding living leader in the federation. Winners were selected from entries submitted by each of the states, the District of Columbia and Alaska.

Miss St. John Barnwell and Mrs. J. H. Jolley were winners in Georgia of the New York Herald Tribune Press contest, held in co-operation with press and publicity department of general federation. Miss Barnwell, winner of the blue ribbon, wrote an article on the sale of dogwood seeds for benefit of Tallulah Falls school. Mrs. Jolley, red ribbon winner, submitted an article on the preliminary publicity of the club institute held last March at Mercer University in Macon.

Georgia clubwomen had best prepare to look their best at the club institute to be held in June in Athens, because the beauty of Indiana clubwomen will direct the institute. She is Mrs. George Jaqua, who looks as though she stepped out of a band box, and is the best dressed and best groomed woman in her federation. She is president of the Indiana Federation, has lots of personal charm and is a very capable director of club institutes and has a splendid stage presence.

Not to be outdone by the Georgia delegates wearing ripe-looking reproductions of Georgia peaches, the delegates from Kentucky hied themselves to town and purchased high-stepping glass horses. Their emblem immediately suggests the famous Kentucky Derby and the home of thoroughbred horses. The New Jersey delegation wear miniature maps of their state, cut in the shape of the state, attached to their badges. Kansas delegates are distinguished by the sunflowers worn on their shoulders.

Mrs. Roland Daniel, of Columbus, Ga., general federation chairman of family relationship, introduced Dr. Daniel A. Poling, renowned pastor of Temple Baptist church in Philadelphia, who spoke on "Mothers of Men." He said "women, whether they mother their own children or children of a community, and whether in private or public life, always they are the mothers of men."

Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of general federation, urged women to keep club activities going the year round. "Human needs and world development are not taking summer vacations," said the speaker. Emergency resolutions pertaining to isolation, pro-convoy and anti-convoy views will be presented to be voted upon at the convention. Revision of by-laws will be voted upon by the convention assembled in the auditorium. Senator Burton Wheeler, of Montana, and Senator Claud A. Pepper, of Florida, conducted a forum on "should ships to England be convoyed by American ships."

Coker-Stewart Rites Announced

Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Coker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Coker Sr., became the bride of Ralph Stephen Stewart, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Stewart, at a ceremony solemnized May 17 at the Capitol View Baptist church. Rev. J. Lee Cutts, assisted by Rev. S. D. Cherry, officiated. A musical program was presented by Mrs. Sara Propp, organist, and Miss Thelma Morris, soloist.

The altar was banked with a massing of palms, the greenery being centered by a basket of calla lilies and flanked by cathedral candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

Serving as ushers were W. J. Chaffin and Joe H. Fuller, and acting as groomsmen was Ralph Carroll.

Miss Mary Louise Jones was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids included Miss Frances Stewart, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in turquoise blue net over matching tulle trimmed in lace, and their bouquets were summer flowers in rainbow shades.

The lovely bride entered with her father and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, William Paschall. She was attired in a white satin gown made on princess lines, the full skirt extending into a train. Her veil of tulle was finger-tip length, and her only ornament was a strand of pearls. Her flowers were bride's roses and valley lilies in a shower effect.

Mrs. Coker, the bride's mother, wore a model of blue printed chiffon with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

Mrs. Stewart, the groom's mother, wore green printed chiffon with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of red roses and valley lilies.

Crackers Score Nine Runs in Second in Beating Barons, 12 to 4

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Bell Goes Haywire

Here of late there have been questions about the Willard-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight at Toledo, July 4, 1919.

The principal question has to do with the manner in which the fight started. There is an impression entertained by some that Willard failed to respond to the initial gong. Fact of the matter is, neither fighter responded, as they failed to hear the bell.

Robert Edgren, greatest fight writer of his day, wrote: "At last they stood there in opposite corners. Dempsey was still staring straight at Willard, head lowered. Willard was staring at Dempsey, eyes drawn to narrow slits. The smile was gone."

"And then came comedy. Warren Barbour, timekeeper, had been sitting by the bell. A $500 stop watch was on the board beside him. He was ready, but being an amateur timekeeper, it never occurred to him to see if the bell would ring. Pecord nodded, Barbour reached out a firm hand and pulled the bell cord, at the same time starting his watch, while the two other official timekeepers started theirs with him. The bell gave out a faintly little tinkling sound. The fighters, poised there in their corners, waiting didn't hear it. Referee Pecord didn't hear it. Barbour pulled the cord again and again. Again the old traditional 'clang of the gong' failed to come. There was another little tinkle.

"Pecord, hearing nothing, waved his hands impatiently. The fighters, leaning forward and balanced to start swiftly from their corners, shifted their feet and looked around. Barbour tried to work the gong. Experienced old-timers all around his side of the ring were shouting, 'Get a hammer!' but nobody had a hammer concealed about his person. Again the gong tinkled, and this time the fighters heard it and started toward each other. But Pecord rushed between them and waved them back. He knew well enough the gong didn't make enough of a sound to be heard at the end of the round.

"Pulling a whistle, Barbour tapped the tinkling gong, blew the whistle and started his stop watch all at the same time. The fighters leaped from their corners and the fight was on."

Destroys Class

So convincing was Dempsey's victory he was acclaimed a fighter without a job; he had the field to himself as completely as does Joe Louis today.

But there always comes the day when a better man is on the way. For Dempsey it was Tunney. For Louis—who knows?

Anyway, Sherman Duffy was another noted writer who covered the Willard-Dempsey scrap and, among other things, Duffy wrote:

"Father Time turned a merciless thumb down for Jess Willard when he struck the gong which interrupted the count over the champion, prostrate for the seventh time at the close of the first round, and sent him out to receive the most brutal beating a heavyweight titleholder ever received." (Editor's

Marist Teams Entertained by Meagher, Butts

Dickerson Is Awarded 'Best Athlete' Trophy at Alumni Banquet.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Big league orators were a dime a dozen, but those present heard a million dollars' worth at the gala annual banquet of the Marist Athletic Association last night at the Ansley hotel.

Jack Meagher, Auburn's grand football coach and grander fellow, made the principal speech and made a host of friends, as did Wally Butts, Georgia's rotund, regular-fellow head grid mentor, who also gave the lads something to think and something to laugh about in his speech.

Others who spoke or participated in the inspirational evening of enjoyment included Trammell Scott, Southern League president; Father Dagneau, head of Marist College; Joe Bean, retired Marist coach; Zack Cravey, Georgia's wildlife commissioner; Dr. Julius Pierotti, president of the alumni association; Jack Tway, president of the Atlanta Field Trial Club; Ed Ryckels, representing Georgia Tech; "Ears" Whitworth, Georgia line coach; Bob Van Houten and Butch McCullough, new Marist grid mentor.

John Bradley served as an efficient and humorous master of ceremonies.

J. R. Dickerson received a trophy as the best all-around athlete at Marist. Joe Wasser, voted the most valuable player on the 1941 Marist football team, received a medal, as did Jack Mays, chosen the most improved player on the grid squad last year, and Charles (Jock) Fitzgerald, who won the most valuable player award on the baseball team.

Dick Reynolds, organizer and first president of the school's Alumni Athletic Association, was presented a trophy of recognition for his huge part in the upbuilding and furtherance of the Ivy Street school's endeavors.

Pictures of the 1940 Auburn victory over Clemson (20 to 7) and of the Georgia win over Tech, 21 to 19, last year, were shown the guests, with running comments by Jack Meagher and Wally Butts as added attractions.

It was a great night for the oldsters and youngsters of Marist.

ARMY DRAFTS GOLF CHAMP—Charlie Yates left his spiked shoes and golf clubs at home yesterday and became a soldier at Fort McPherson. Here he is trying on the khaki uniform he'll wear for a year as a draftee.

Yates Swaps Golf Club for Gun; Spends Busy First Day

Grimacing Charlie Will Know Today Whether He Will Be Stationed at Fort McPherson.

By AL SHARP.

Another guy named Charlie went to the Army yesterday. His last name is Yates, and he has won several golf titles, including the coveted British Amateur, so there was quite a fanfare.

But not because Charlie Yates wanted it that way.

The quick-to-laugh young man, who is taking a leave of absence from his position as an assistant vice president of a bank here, took his place among the seven draftees in a hurry.

Charlie was the last one to arrive—right on time—at 9 o'clock at DeKalb County Board No. 1 on Mayson street. Before he had been there two minutes, though, he had introduced himself to the six others who were to be inducted with him.

When the 27-year-old Charlie went around to shake hands with his new friends, he met:

Ralph Henry Jones, 30, store clerk; Everett Hayes Wells, hardware clerk; Roy Waverly Dollar, 23, sheet metal worker; Henry Bohannon, 28, instrument man on a construction engineering crew; Charles Alexander Connolly, 21, drug clerk; William Clifford Groover, 25, railway mail clerk.

After a short talk in which Oby T. Brewer reminded the boys to write their mothers, the selectees, with Yates as the leader, headed for Fort McPherson.

At the post, Charlie was eager to be just another private-to-be, but news of his coming had reached the men there, and he had a hard time from that angle.

Friends popped up almost every place he went, and Charlie was busy greeting them during the x-rays, the physical examinations and the distribution of khaki clothes.

Three photographers were along, too, and the flash bulbs were going off every time he turned around. There was plenty of good-natured kidding, and Bonnie Charlie, as his thousands of admirers in Scotland dubbed him when he took the British title, was right in his glory.

He might have been headed for a friendly golf match, instead of a year in the Army.

As the group came out of the gymnasium after the physical examinations, a newspaperman asked if he could ride the draftees to the reception center. A sergeant pointed to Charlie and said: "You can take him, but the others better walk."

Charlie walks. Charlie would have none of that. He walked with the rest of them.

After his first Army meal at the reception center messhall, Charlie was taken to get an outfit. It was a quick fit for the benefit of photographers. Later, he went back for the right sizes.

Today Charlie will receive an intelligence test. Then he will be interviewed and classified. It is possible that Charlie will be stationed at Fort McPherson, but he will not know until today or maybe later.

Charlie wasn't worried about that. "I'll be glad to go any place they want me to," he said. "Wherever they need me or can use me is where I want to be."

When Charles Richardson Yates is classified, he will lose his name. He will be a typist or an accountant or some other type of worker on a card. Some post, possibly McPherson, will ask for such a qualified worker. A man will set a device which has things resembling knitting needles on it. A card automatically will fall out of

Paul Richards Tallies Twice In Big Inning

Burge, Lochbaum Get 3 Hits Each; Lester Bats in 5 Runs.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 21.—

It was a mistake for the Barons to play the fifth game with the Crackers. They had the Barons hanging on the ropes before the third inning as they jumped Firpo Burge and Zach Schuessler for 10 runs, ending up with a 12-to-4 revenge victory.

Emil Lochbaum went the route, aided by the tremendous lead the Crackers built up for him as the visitors weren't bashful about hitting. However, the Barons nailed Lochbaum for 10 hits, including homers by Dutch Mele and Hank Sauer.

Lester Burge took charge of the runs-batted-in department for the Crackers. He hammered across five with a fielder's choice, two singles and a home run. He shared hitting honors with Professor Marshall out at second as Bates scored. Burge stole second, but Glock struck out.

Charlie Glock was the only Cracker to go hitless. He was riding a Charley horse, so can be excused for not helping himself at the dish.

POINDEXTER TONIGHT.

Jennings Poinexter will be Manager Richards' selection to open the New Orleans series Thursday night. The loss of their first series of the year didn't faze the Crackers. They were hustling all the way tonight, even challenging the umpires with a nine-run lead. They just don't know when to let up.

Young Burge's wildness cost him a run without the Crackers getting a base hit in the first inning. Bates walked. Thomassie was hit by a pitched ball. Ryan was called out on strikes. Marshall walked, leading the bases. Burge hit to Sauer, who threw Marshall out at second as Bates scored. Burge stole second, but Glock struck out.

The Crackers wore the Barons out, especially Schuessler, in scoring nine runs in the second. Professor Lochbaum, supposed to be the pitching, got two hits. It must have been soft pickings.

It all started with Burge walking. Richards and Bergmann. Schuessler came in and gunned up Lochbaum's sacrifice, which went for a hit. Bates cracked one into center, scoring Richards and Bergmann. Thomassie bunted again. The ball got by Schuessler

Johnny Gerlach Gone Again Shortstop Is Property of St. Paul Club

By JACK TROY.

Johnny Gerlach is not a Cracker again, after all. The ace shortstop, whose draft status remains indefinite, simply returned to Atlanta of "his own free will and accord," according to President Earl Mann, who added yesterday that "we turned him back to St. Paul and he is the property of that ball club."

Gerlach, who is on the road with the Atlanta team, has not been on the active list since his return, and he has been instructed to come back to Atlanta. He'll probably collect his belongings and go to St. Paul for a conference with Lou Kenna, business manager of the Saints.

If it were definitely established that Gerlach, who is a law student at the University of Wisconsin in the winter, were not going to be called to the colors this summer, chances are the Crackers would make a strong bid to get him back from St. Paul.

But Gerlach never has had definite word as to when he might be called to the colors, and Russ Bergmann has done royally since taking over the shortstop position regularly.

"We'd like to have Gerlach," Earl Mann explained, "but we can't take a chance of replacing Bergmann with Gerlach and then not having any shortstop at all."

Witt Guise struck out the side in the fourth.

Guise struck out Glock in the fifth with two on for his fifth whiffing victim.

Hank Sauer hit a home run into the right field bleachers in the sixth.

Lester Burge hit a home run in the eighth, counting for his fifth run batted in. The ball was driven high into the right field bleachers.

Dutch Mele hit his ninth home run of the season in the eighth. It was the third homer of the night hit into the right field bleachers.

Florida House Votes License For Fishermen

Change Would Apply Only to Fresh Water Fishing.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 21.—(P)—The house voted today, 66 to 14, to levy annual licenses on fresh water sports fishermen, except those who fish only with pole and line within the county of their residence.

If the senate agrees, rod and reel fishermen will pay $1 for a state-wide license. If they want to do pole and line fishing, they will buy another license for $1. Pole and line fishermen who go out of their residence county will pay $1 license.

The present license for fresh water fishing is $2 for a state-wide license, with no license required for fishing only in the county of legal residence.

Representative Simpson, of Jefferson, who sponsored the license revision, said the game and fresh water fish commission's annual revenues would be increased about $40,000.

The house passed, 67 to 0, a senate-approved bill reducing the day's bag limit on black bass from 12 to 8, and trimming the maximum legal catch of smaller species of fresh water fish, such as bream, from 30 to 20.

WEST POINT KEEPS IN STEP

Academy Hopes To Avoid Upheaval of World War I

(Editor's Note: Treasured traditions of the United States Military Academy still are maintained as West Point keeps in step with the national defense setup program, despite changes in the institution. Bill Boni tells about them in this second of three daily stories for The Constitution. Tomorrow: A day with the cadets.)

By BILL BONI.
WEST POINT, N. Y., May 21.—Ask the average man today what he thinks of the United States Naval Academy and the United States Military Academy, and the chances are that he'll reply with a question:

"Why hasn't the Army speeded up graduation the way the Navy has?"

What he means is that the Naval Academy now is compressing what used to be a four-year course into three and a half years. At West Point a cadet still is graduated four years after he enters, and academy authorities are going to do everything they can to keep that system as it is today.

Primarily, there is no need for West Point to turn out new officers at a speed-up rate. The Navy needs officers to man the new two-ocean warships that are sliding down the ways. But the Navy must draw those officers almost exclusively from Annapolis.

Has Reserves.
The Army also needs new officers to handle an Army that is five times as large as it was a year ago. But the Army can get those officers from a vast reserve pool that has been built up steadily since the World War.

In order to supply the rapidly expanding U. S. Army with enough officers, West Point's class of 1917 was sent out two months ahead of time, the class of 1918 nine months early, 1919 a full year, 1920 two years and 1921 about 32 months ahead of schedule.

Two Plebe Groups.
To add to the confusion, the War Department ordered a new fourth-class to report to the Academy, which thereupon had two sets of plebes and no upperclassmen, and then ordered one of the two most recently-graduated classes to return to the Academy for six months' additional training.

The original plebes were uniformed in regulation cadet grey; the "new" plebes, lacking such uniforms, wore the olive drab of enlisted men, and the returned graduates, uniformed as officers, were regarded as such by the cadets but regarded as cadets by the officers.

Develop Democracy.
Chief step in carrying on the traditions was the decision of the superintendent, Brigadier General Douglas MacArthur, to have the officer-instructors move into the barracks with the cadets.

There, to quote Lieutenant Colonel Beukema, "they served as mentors and guides rather than as mere dispensers of military discipline" and, with their aid, the corps drew up a set of customs and traditions whose preface included the statement that "the spirit of democracy must prevail at West Point, and only those conditions which are believed to improve the value of the individual to the government can be preserved."

There are no special privileges, each man's pay is the same, they study the same courses. Each man's grades are posted publicly each Saturday, so that he may see exactly how he stands in his class.

Famed Honor System.
Most famous of the West Point traditions is the honor system. Not actually a system in the accepted sense of the word, it is so well-grounded that an instructor knows a cadet will not lie, will report himself even for an unintentional violation of the honor code.

By all of these rules and these customs, most of them laid down in the early years of the nineteenth century by Colonel Sylvanus Thayer, "father of the military academy," West Point manages to turn out a product that is remarkably uniform.

Binds Personnel.
"It has never been the policy for West Point to provide the total officer personnel for the Army," says Brigadier General Robert L. Eichelberger, the present superintendent. "West Point merely binds together the officer personnel as does cement in mortar and yeast in bread. This mix provides the uniformity of the product, so that a division in California has the same ideals and standards of training as a division in Florida or Maine."

The specialization, in other words, can come later. After West Point has provided a youngster with the proper training essential to "an officer and a gentleman" (for whom an unidentified Broadway producer once thought he would have to cast two actors).

West Point has been attacked, too, for clinging to its policy of using officers rather than civilians as instructors and professors in Academic course. It is too much to expect an officer to return to West Point after several years' absence of active service, some persons argue, and be qualified to give expert instruction in such subjects as solid and analytical geometry, economics and government, or physics.

Keep in Line.
The West Point answer to this is that such instructors, who have a definite liking for teaching, have taken graduate work in their specialties at Cornell, Columbia, Harvard or Michigan, some with the aid of government subsidy and others at their own expense and on their own time. After one four-year tour as instructors, they will work to be given another, by then may be qualified as associate professors, and from there step up to be professors and as such hold their positions for life.

"There was a lot of talk in Washington before I came here last November," says General Eichelberger, "that our professors didn't get out enough."

"They're getting out now. We send 'em to Fort Benning, to Fort Sill, to Fort Knox, to Fort Bragg, they continue research at civilian colleges and universities—all so that they can come back here informed on the latest developments in their fields and ready to recommend any way in which they believe our courses of instruction can be improved."

Makes Counterchange.

Finally, West Point indirectly and the United States Army directly have been accused of lack of initiative, of being able to learn the answers to copybook problems without having the imagination to find answers to new ones—on such points, for instance, as the German Army's vast strides in the development of the tank.

The West Point reply is this counterchange:

That, during the eight years in which Germany was concentrating almost exclusively on its war effort, United States appropriations were barely enough to keep our Army clothed and fed;

That in the past the United States Army has pioneered in the development and use of such weapons as the Gatling gun, one of the first forms of Rapid-fire guns, the Colt automatic pistol, the airplane, the machine gun and the Garand rifle (which the cadets use).

And that, if proof of West Pointers' initiative and imagination is needed, one only has to study the roster of graduates who have gone from the Army into successful careers in civil life, ranging from president of the United States to nearly 100 presidents of railroads and other corporations.
